 theory challenging the notion of an autonomous self and driving early modern avant garde poetry As an emerging empirical scientific world view and a rising Cartesian dualist ontology transformed the ancient hope for the resurrection of the flesh into the fantasy of a soul or mind living on separately from any body literature complicated the terms of the debate Such poets as Donne Herbert Vaughan and Jonson picked up the discarded idea of the resurrection of the flesh and bent it from an apocalyptic future into the here and now to imagine the self already infused with the strange vibrant materiality of the resurrection body Fate of the Flesh explores what happens when seventeenth century poets posit a resurrection body within the historical person These poets see the resurrection body as the precondition for the social person s identities and forms of agency and yet as deeply other to all such identities and agencies an alien within the self that both enables and undercuts life as a social person This perspective leads seventeenth century poets to a compelling awareness of the unsettling materiality within the heart of the self and allows them to re imagine agency selfhood and the natural world in its light By developing a poetics that seeks a deranging materiality within the self these poets anticipate twentieth century avant garde poetics They frame their poems neither as simple representation nor as beautiful objects but as a form of social praxis that creates new communities of readers and writers assembled around a new experience of self as body mediated by poetry World War Z
