The representation of sleep in Samuel Daniel's "Care-charmer Sleepe" in comparison to Sir Philip Sidney's "Come sleepe, o sleepe", 2019-08-06 Seminar paper from the year 2018 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 2 0 Christian Albrechts University of Kiel language English abstract Sleep is a prevalent motif in poetry As a universal topic sleep or sleeplessness has an impact on everyone 1 For this reason many poets not only of the Renaissance dedicated the sonnets to their beloved to sleep The aim of this seminar paper is to make transparent how sleep is depicted in two different Renaissance sonnets The sequence of sonnets to Delia by Samuel Daniel contains the poem Care charmer Sleepe Another poem Come sleepe o sleepe from the sequence Astrophil and Stella by Sir Philip Sidney is also concerned with this topic For this seminar paper it is of great interest to examine in how far the illustrations of sleep in these two poems differ from each other or reveal similarities This subject is of particular significance as the two sonnet sequences have been written in about the same time in the end of the sixteenth century so that a comparison of the depictions of sleep is profitable In the beginning Sir Philip Sidney's sonnet is presented and investigated with regard to its depiction of sleep The different techniques of figuration to achieve the illustration of sleep in the way the poem presents it are taken into account Therefore it will be revealed by which means sleep is pictured in this specific sonnet Subsequently the second poem by Samuel Daniel is looked at It will be focused on the approach which the speaker in this sonnet takes to depict an image of sleep By means of this different aspects of illustrating sleep and techniques of achieving the result which is presented in the

sonnets are emphasized and can therefore be compared in a following chapter Research literature related to sleep as a motif in poetry and especially with regard to the two selected poems is rare The field of research is a rather unexamined realm Therefore not many secondary literature can be consulted to support the findings of this seminar paper Nevertheless excerpts from Ruth F Clancy's Thematic Guide to British Poetry can contribute to the argumentation of this term paper because they comprise the motif of sleep with regard to different poems among others also Sir Philip Sidney's and Samuel Daniel's sonnets which build the core of this seminar paper But this work remains one of the scarce sources in this field of research

Love and its Critics Michael Bryson, Arpi Movsesian, 2017-07-10 This book is a history of love and the challenge love offers to the laws and customs of its times and places as told through poetry from the Song of Songs to John Milton's Paradise Lost It is also an account of the critical reception afforded to such literature and the ways in which criticism has attempted to stifle this challenge Bryson and Movsesian argue that the poetry they explore celebrates and reinvents the love the troubadour poets of the eleventh and twelfth centuries called fin amor love as an end in itself mutual and freely chosen even in the face of social religious or political retribution Neither eros nor agape neither exclusively of the body nor solely of the spirit this love is a middle path Alongside this tradition has grown a critical movement that employs a hermeneutics of suspicion in Paul Ricoeur's phrase to claim that passionate love poetry is not what it seems and should be properly understood as worship of God subordination to Empire or an entanglement with the structures of language itself in short the very things it resists The book engages with some of the seminal literature of the Western canon including the Bible the poetry of Ovid and works by English authors such as William Shakespeare and John Donne and with criticism that stretches from the earliest readings of the Song of Songs to contemporary academic literature Lively and enjoyable in its style it attempts to restore a sense of pleasure to the reading of poetry and to puncture critical insistence that literature must be outwitted It will be of value to professional graduate and advanced undergraduate scholars of literature and to the educated general reader interested in treatments of love in poetry throughout history
