Mind Expanding: Teaching For Thinking And Creativity In Primary Education Wegerif, Rupert, 2010-08-01 There is considerable interest in education around the world in flexible thinking and learning skills but very little consensus as to the nature of these skills and how best to promote them in schools This book puts forward a clear and practical framework for understanding thinking creativity and learning to learn as the fruits of engagement in dialogue It also outlines in detail how this framework can be applied to teaching across the curriculum at both primary and secondary level drawing on the best practices associated with the teaching thinking creativity and learning to learn movements explaining their success in terms of dialogic theory In particular the book incorporates aspects of a number of thinking skills approaches such as Lipman's Philosophy for Children approach as well as features of contemporary innovations in education such as assessment for learning and the development of creativity. Each chapter opens with a vignette to set the scene and continues into a light and popularly written exposition of theory before moving on to a description of practice and concluding with practical guidelines for how to teach for thinking and creativity in schools and classrooms. The first six chapters in the book have more of a focus on developing core theoretical themes and the following six chapters in the second half of the book focus more on practice-led themes. The relationship between theory and practice is treated as flexible and dynamic, theory being developed by practice as much as practice implementing theory.

Learning from Museums John H. Falk, Lynn D. Dierking, 2018-10-16 This is the second edition of John H. Falk and Lynn D. Dierking's ground-breaking book Learning from Museums. While the book still focuses on why, how, what, when and with whom people learn from their museum experiences, the authors further investigate the extension of museums beyond their walls and the changing perceptions of the roles that museums increasingly play in the 21st century with respect to the publics they serve and those they would like to serve. This new edition offers an updated and synthesized version of the Contextual Model of Learning as well as the latest advances in free choice learning research theory and practice in order to provide readers a highly readable and informative understanding of the personal, sociocultural and physical dimensions of the museum experience. Falk and Dierking also fill in gaps in the 1st edition. Falk's research focuses increasingly on the self-related needs that museums meet and these findings enhance the personal context chapter. Dierking's work delves deeply into the macro sociocultural dimensions of learning, a topic not discussed in the sociocultural chapter in the first edition. Emphasizing the importance of time and space, the second edition adds an entirely new chapter to describe the important dimension of time. They also insert findings from the burgeoning field of neuroscience. Latter chapters of the book discuss the evolving role of museums in the rapidly changing Information Learning Society of the 21st century. New examples and suggestions highlight the ways that the new understandings of learning can help museum practitioners reinvent how museums can and should support the public's lifelong, life-wide and life-deep learning.
