Losses bring end to Tide

The Oct. 20 edition of the Little Elm Tide will be the last one published by Tide Publishing, Inc.

"Publication will come because of continuing financial losses of the Tide. There are too few paid subscribers and too few advertisers to make the newspaper break even on production costs," Jack Blalock, publisher, said.

The Colony Courier, sister newspaper to the Tide, will continue to be published at the present office in Little Elm.

Subscribers to the Tide can receive the annual balance of their subscription price by either phoning or writing the Tide, or they may ask that the balance of their subscription be switched over to the Courier.

The Tide was the forerunner of the Courier in the Colony. Colony residents began subscribing to the Tide in November 1974 and before the Courier began publication in August 1976 had a few hundred Colony subscribers.

When the Tide ceases publication it will make possible increased coverage of Colony news, Blalock said.

Reserve applicants processed

The Colony Police Department is processing reserve police reserve applicants who will be sent to school Oct. 17 for eight weeks and then return to it after background checks run and they pass the schooling. Police Chief Jim Beltran said.

Five other reserve applicants will be processed the first part of 1978 in preparation for a March or April police academy.

All other applicants will be kept on file for future consideration as replacements are necessary and possible force growth. The city ordinance authorizing the reserve force limits the force to 10 members.

"On behalf of the city and the Police Department, I cannot say enough about how pleased I am with the officers' willingness and desire to contribute the most valuable thing they have, their time," Beltran said.

Bock to resign seat on P&Z

Colby Bock said Tuesday she was prepared to resign as a member of the city's Planning and Zoning Commission when more members are appointed.

Mrs. Bock of 4920 Winrock Circle was named to the City Council on Oct. 3 to replace Dick Weaver who resigned.

"I'm happy to be on the council and think it's exciting. I think it's a big job and want the city to be a success," she said.

If she resigns from P&Z now the commission wouldn't have a quorum to conduct business. Mike Mansfield, P&Z chairman, and Art Welby, vice chairman, had resigned a few days earlier. Mansfield said he had bought property outside the Colony and planned to move, and Welby resigned after being named to the Municipal Utilities District board.

Recently five residents were interviewed by remaining P&Z members to fill vacant seats on the commission. The City Council will appoint the replacements.

The P&Z has some big recommendations to make to the Council. One is the location of the Colony's first shopping center. Residents have said the first store built in a center should be a supermarket.

Youths at bike rodeo

Some of the 40 entries in the bicycle rodeo held Saturday at Camery Elementary School crowded around the table holding trophies. Winners were Jeff Kanata, first; Todd Jorgensen, second; and Bryan Jennings, third. Trophies were presented Tuesday night at the Camery PTA meeting. The rodeo was sponsored by the Colony Jaycees and the PTA.

All midpoint of the fall season, the Colony Tornado was tied for first place in the Eastern Conference of the under-16 boys' soccer division. The Tornado have 3 wins, 1 loss and 1 tie.

Returning for their fifth season are Brett Davis, Tommy Farmer, Scott Head, Markene Hubbard, Chris Jorgensen, Rusty Kelley, Michael Mendez, Chip Orndorff, Troy Smith, Brent Wiley and Jimmy Summers.

The team's new sponsor is Peterson's Show in Loveland.

Openings remain in CPR course

There are still openings for the CPR (Cardiac Pulmonary Resuscitation) course scheduled in November at Camery Elementary School, Don Hubbard, director of education for Colony PTA, said.

The course will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. the first three Mondays in November at the school. Due to a conflict in scheduling the sign-in program sponsored by Camery PTA has been changed from Oct. 24. It will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 25 at Camery School and the public is invited.
