Zoomscape Architecture In Motion And Media:

Zoomscape Mitchell Schwarzer, 2004-03 Although a few among us are intrepid architectural tourists visiting buildings and landscapes our cameras at the ready most of us experience architecture through the windshield of a moving vehicle the architectural experience reduced to a blurry and momentary drive by And the rest of our architectural tourism is through the images of cameras movies and television programs that is through the lens of another's eye Architectural historian Mitchell Schwarzer calls this new mediated architectural experience the zoomscape In this thought provoking book he argues that the perception of architecture has been fundamentally altered by the technologies of transportation and the camera we now look at buildings neighborhoods cities and even entire continents as we ride in trains cars and planes and or as we view photographs movies and television Zoomscape shows how we now perceive buildings and places at high speeds across great distances through edited and multiple reproductions Nowadays our views of the architectural landscape are modulated by the accelerator pedal and the remote control by studio production techniques and airplane flight paths Using examples from high art and popular culture from the novels of Don DeLillo to the opening credits of The Sopranos Mitchell Schwarzer shows that the zoomscape has brought about unprecedented and often marvelous new ways of perceiving the built environment

Practicing Utopia Rosemary Wakeman, 2016-04-01 The typical town springs up around a natural resource a river an ocean an exceptionally deep harbor or in proximity to a larger already thriving town Not so with new towns which are created by decree rather than out of necessity and are often intended to break from the tendencies of past development New towns aren't a new thing ancient Phoenicians named their colonies Qart Hadasht or New City but these utopian developments saw a resurgence in the twentieth century In Practicing Utopia Rosemary Wakeman gives us a sweeping view of the new town movement as a global phenomenon From Tapiola in Finland to Islamabad in Pakistan Cergy Pontoise in France to Irvine in California Wakeman unspools a masterly account of the golden age of new towns exploring their utopian qualities and investigating what these towns can tell us about contemporary modernization and urban planning She presents the new town movement as something truly global defying a Cold War East West dichotomy or the north south polarization of rich and poor countries Wherever these new towns were located whatever their size whether famous or forgotten they shared a utopian lineage and conception that in each case reveals how residents and planners imagined their ideal urban future

The Future Revisited Francoise Schiltz, 2012-05-04 The Future Revisited examines Hollywood adaptations of Jules Verne stories and is an interdisciplinary study that offers a fresh perspective on film history French literature science fiction and America in the 1950s It is a fascinating and authoritative account of how the stories of Jules Verne a distinguished French novelist better known around the world as the father of science fiction and an accurate predictor of much of the twentieth century found particular resonance with US filmmakers in the 1950s Schiltz looks at four of the most popular films Around the World in 80 Days 20 000 Leagues Under the Sea Journey to the Center of the Earth and Mysterious Island and argues that there were many parallels between Verne's technological adventures and postwar America with its theme parks shopping malls Levittowns and plethora of consumer goods Just as nineteenth century readers of Verne's books could experience travel from the comfort of their seats viewers of these films could be swept away on an imaginary flight a voyage in a submarine or a trek to the earth's core all in spectacular widescreen and with ground breaking special effects Yet the pleasures offered were ambivalent encounters with exotic places and cultures might have led the audience to question common assumptions such as gender roles seeing futuristic domestic spaces could highlight the confusion of attitudes to private and public life in suburbia and the films blending of nostalgia and progress might draw attention to society's tug of war between innovation and conformity

Time for mapping Sybille Lammes, Chris Perkins, Alex Gekker, Sam Hind, Clancy Wilmott, Daniel Evans, 2018-06-29 Maps take place in time as well as representing space The Google map on your smartphone appears to fix the world serving as a practical spatial tool but in practice is deployed in ways that draw attention to memories rhythm synchronicity sequence and duration This interdisciplinary collection focuses on how these temporal aspects of mapping might be understood at a time when mapping technologies have been profoundly changed by digital developments It contrasts different aspects of this temporality bringing together experts from critical cartography media studies and science and technology studies Together the chapters offer a unique interdisciplinary focus revealing the complex and social ways in which time is wrapped up with digital technologies and revealed in everyday mapping tasks from navigating across cities to serving as scientific groundings for news stories from managing smart cities to visual art practice It brings time back into the map An electronic edition of this book is freely available under a Creative Commons CC BY NC ND licence

Affective Critical Regionality Neil Campbell, 2016-08-17 Affective Critical Regionality offers a new approach to developing a sharper more nuanced understanding of the relations between place space memory and affect It builds on the author's extensive work on the American West where he developed the idea of expanded critical regionalism to underline the West as multiple dynamic and relational engaged in global local processes tensions between the rooted and the routed and increasingly as relevant to debates around the politics of precarity and vulnerability This book uses affective critical regionality to enable a re valuing of the local as a powerful means to appreciate the everyday and the over looked as vital elements within a more inclusive understanding of how we live Exploring a variety of cultural materials including fiction memoir theory poetry and film it demonstrates how this approach can deepen our understanding of and simultaneously provoke new relations with place Moving beyond the US context through its use of international theoretical voices and texts it will show how the concept is applicable to other cultural spheres

Losing Site Dr Shelley Hornstein, 2013-06-28 As Ruskin suggests in his Seven Lamps of Architecture We may live without architecture and worship without her but we cannot remember without her We remember best when we experience an event in a place But what happens when we leave that place or that place no longer exists This book addresses the relationship between memory and place and asks how architecture captures and triggers memory It explores how architecture exists as a material object and how it registers as a place that we come to remember beyond the physical site itself It questions what architecture is in the broadest sense assuming that it is not simply buildings Rather architecture is considered to be the mapping of physical mental or emotional space The idea that we are all architects in some measure as we actively organize and select pathways and markers within space is central to this book's premise Each chapter provides a different example of the manifold ways in which the physical place of architecture is curated by the architecture in our mental space our imaginary toolbox when we think of a place and look at a photograph or visit a site and describe it later or send a postcard By connecting architecture with other disciplines such as geography visual culture sociology and urban studies as well as the fine and performing arts this book puts forward the idea that a conversation about architecture is not exclusively about formal isolated buildings but instead must be deepened and broadened as spatialized visualizations and experiences of place
