Neural Networks LEA 1992 this book addresses the controversy between symbolicist artificial intelligence and neural network theory A particular issue is how well neural networks well established for statistical pattern matching can perform the higher cognitive functions that are more often associated with symbolic approaches This controversy has a long history but recently erupted with arguments against the abilities of renewed neural network developments More broadly than other attempts the diverse contributions presented here not only address the theory and implementation of artificial neural networks for higher cognitive functions but also critique the history of assumed epistemologies both neural networks and AI and include several neurobiological studies of human cognition as a real system to guide the further development of artificial ones Organized into four major sections this volume outlines the history of the AI neural network controversy the strengths and weaknesses of both approaches and shows the various capabilities such as generalization and discreteness as being along a broad but common continuum introduces several explicit theoretical structures demonstrating the functional equivalences of neurocomputing with the staple objects of computer science and AI such as sets and graphs shows variants
