Where Have All the Birds Gone? John Terborgh, 1989-12-21 Things are going wrong with our environment writes John Terborgh even the parts of it that are nominally protected If we wait until all the answers are in we may find ourselves in a much worse predicament than if we had taken notice of the problem earlier By waiting one risks being too late on the other hand there can be no such thing as being too early Terborgh's warnings are essential reading for all who care about migratory birds and our natural environment Why are tropical migrant species disappearing from our forests Can we save the birds that are left Terborgh takes a more comprehensive view of migratory birds than is usual by asking how they spend their lives during the half year they reside in the tropics By scrutinizing ill planned urban and suburban development in the United States and the tropical deforestation of Central and South America he summarizes our knowledge of the subtle combination of circumstances that is devastating our bird populations This work is pervaded by Terborgh's love for the thrushes warblers vireos cuckoos flycatchers and tanagers that inhabited his family's woodland acreage while he was growing up birds that no longer live there in spite of the preservation of those same woods as part of a county park The book is a tour of topics as varied as ecological monitoring the plight of the Chesapeake wetlands the survival struggle of Central American subsistence farmers and the management of commercial forests Seed Dispersal and Frugivory Douglas John Levey, Wesley R. Silva, Mauro Galetti, 2002 This book provides information on the historical and theoretical perspectives of biodiversity and ecology in tropical forests plant and animal behaviour towards seed dispersal and plant animal interactions within forest communities consequences of seed dispersal and conservation biodiversity and management
