Women Citizenship And Difference Postcolonial Encounters:

Beyond Mothering Earth Sherilyn Macgregor, 2011-11-01 Women's environmental activism is often described in maternalist terms as if motherhood and caring for the environment go hand in hand. While feminists celebrate this connection, women and all those who care for people and environments are facing increasing burdens and decreasing time for civic engagement. In Beyond Mothering Earth, MacGregor argues that celebrations of earthcare as women's unique contribution to the search for sustainability often neglect to consider the importance of politics and citizenship in women's lives. Drawing on interviews with women who juggle private caring with civic engagement in quality of life concerns, she proposes an alternative: a project of feminist ecological citizenship that affirms the practice of citizenship as an intrinsically valuable activity while recognizing the foundational aspects of caring labour and natural processes that allow its specificity to flourish. Beyond Mothering Earth provides an original and empirically grounded understanding of women's involvement in quality of life activism and an analysis of citizenship that makes an important contribution to contemporary discussions of green politics, globalization, neoliberalism, and democratic justice. It will be of value to scholars and activists interested in the politics of environmental sustainability and the shifting meanings of citizenship in an increasingly vulnerable world. Handbook on the Geographies of Globalization Robert C. Kloosterman, Virginie Mamadouh, Pieter Terhorst, 2018-11-30 Processes of globalization have changed the world in many often fundamental ways. Increasingly, these processes are being debated and contested. This Handbook offers a timely, rich, as well as critical panorama of these multifaceted processes with up-to-date chapters by renowned specialists from many countries. It comprises chapters on the historical background of globalization, different geographical perspectives including world systems analysis and geopolitics, the geographies of flows of people, goods, and services, and capital, and the geographies of places including global cities, clusters, port cities, and the impact of climate change. Transatlantic Conversations Mary Evans, 2016-02-24 The second wave of feminism, which challenged and changed many assumptions about the world in which we live, was a product of various Western cultures, with no single country possessing a monopoly on the writing of the texts that became the canonical statements of the new feminism. Though many of the contributions to feminist scholarship that went on to become internationally significant hailed from Europe and the United States, these works were often formed within the context of local debates and framed within traditions of feminism and other political engagements specific to these nations. Transatlantic Conversations explores the differences yielded by such conditions and their consequences for the meaning of feminism. Examining the meaning and implications of the different ways in which various shared categories have been treated on both sides of the Atlantic, this volume both analyses differences within feminism and provides a framework for the wider discussion of what is sometimes assumed to be the homogeneity of The West. With leading scholars from either side of the Atlantic presenting brand new work, Transatlantic Conversations suggests directions for future research which will be of interest to scholars of feminism, gender studies, sociology, political science and international relations geography and cultural studies as well as anyone concerned with the ways in which the different political and intellectual traditions of Europe and the US have shaped current political and intellectual debates

Gendering Ethnicity Lori Handrahan, 2018-10-24 Democracy anticipated by American and other Western powers to prevent economic chaos and political conflict within and among states is not evolving as expected This research argues that part of the failure resides in United States democracy assistance s inadequate consideration of gender within democracy programming

Negotiating in/visibility Amelia Bonea, Irina Nastasa-Matei, 2025-08-05 This volume brings together scholars from different disciplinary backgrounds to discuss how women contributed to the making pedagogy institutionalisation and communication of scientific knowledge in the twentieth century and to reflect on the theoretical and methodological challenges of documenting such hidden contributions Featuring examples from China former Czechoslovakia Greece Hungary India Japan Romania the United Kingdom and the United States the contributors discuss women s engagement with science across different institutional and non institutional sites ranging from the laboratory and the school to the clinic the home and the media The volume moves beyond the professional scientist model to enlarge our understanding of women s participation in twentieth century science and document the complex combination of factors that rendered such contributions in visible to contemporaries and future generations

Women, Citizenship and Difference Pnina Werbner, Nira Yuval-Davis, 1999-06 Prominent scholars from various disciplines rethink the idea of citizenship and its relation to gender ethnicity class and national status in this collection which focuses on the current dismantling of welfare states and the rise in state terror

Women's Livelihood Rights Sumi Krishna, 2007-09-10 This interdisciplinary book looks at women s natural resource based livelihoods in the wider context of development viewed through the lens of citizenship rights Unravelling the patriarchal social fabric and policy structures in India it argues that the concept of citizenship needs to be extended to include recognition of ways of life and livelihood so that women take their legitimate space as productive human beings entitled to dignity as a political right and not merely to protection and welfare The editor weaves together a historical perspective on varied dimensions of livelihood development and citizenship Drawing upon rich field based researches in 13 states across India the authors deal with complex and inter related themes the need to recognise women s right to resources and their livelihood and employment strategies the challenges of democratic governance and of restructuring institutional systems to make them responsive and the role of women s collective agency in development Reflecting upon and critically analysing context specific issues in several less studied locations the book shows that there is much to be learnt from empathetic interaction with the collective struggles of poor women and from action and dialogue on the ground Further it suggests that feminist politics has to network strategically with other struggles to counter the resistance of traditional and contemporary patriarchal structures and to work towards recasting citizenship for a gender just development that ensures women s livelihood rights

Constructing Democracy in Transitioning Societies of Africa Susanna D. Wing, 2008-04-15 Forty one different African states have adopted over fifty seven new constitutions since 1989 yet few of these have become foundations for democracy Failed transitions subsequent instability and violent conflict make it clear that democracy cannot simply be constructed by holding elections and implementing new constitutions Unlike other attempts to explain both the frequent failures and the success stories of African constitutionalism by focusing on constitutional outcomes Wing's study examines the process by which constitutions and democratic institutions are constructed Based on extensive field work in Mali this book explores how innovative constitutional dialogues involving participation negotiation and recognition of groups previously excluded from political decision making may be the key to a legitimate constitution Winner of the 2009 Best Book Award from the African Politics Conference Group

Postcolonial Subjectivities in Africa Pnina Werbner, 2002 These essays on postcolonial subjectivities cross the frontiers of critical theory by illuminating the contradictory predicaments Africans confront in strikingly different parts of the continent at the start of the 21st century The focus is on the making of subjectivities as a process which is political a matter of subjugation to state authority moral reflected in the conscience and agency of subjects who bear rights duties and obligations and realised existentially in the subjects consciousness of their personal or intimate relations The notion of agency is interrogated without lapsing into the new Afro pessimism The essays recognise postcolonies troubled by state decline and increasing exploitation dispossession and marginalisation but avoid Afro pessimism's reduction of subjects to mere victims Even more against the grain of conventional postcolonial studies is the radical questioning of the force of modern subjectivism in struggles for control of identity autonomy and explicit consciousness and through artistic self fashioning in globally driven consumption With substantial cases based on autobiography personal experience and long term scholarly fieldwork in countries as diverse as Madagascar Kenya Uganda Sudan Botswana and Cameroon the book opens out a fresh field for comparative research and theory on postcolonial transformations in intersubjectivity This is to take seriously the people's perception so widespread in postcolonial Africa that to live life to the full is to live it in interdependence in conviviality if possible that care and respect for others indeed civility is a precious and indeed precarious condition of survival and as such is the object of recognised strategies for its conscious defence and that because significant others are opaque never being totally knowable uncertainty ambivalence and contingency are inescapable conditions of human existence

The Challenge of Post-Zionism Ephraim Nimni, 2003 The debate within Israel on the country's future and characteristics known as Post Zionism challenges fundamental myths surrounding the early history and contemporary identity of the Israeli State The argument is voiced by individuals and groups with different political agendas and drawn from the Israeli media intellectual circles and academia It seeks to downplay the influence of Judaism in the definition of the state and to move towards the idea that Israel should become a secular state of all its citizens This argument has profound implications for the Israeli Palestinian conflict and for Israeli politics The contributors to this volume present the debate examine Post Zionism's meanings and prospects place it in its political context and explore its implications for out groups including Palestinians Israeli women and Jewish people outside Israel
