The Weight Of The World Social Suffering In Contemporary Society:

The Weight of the World Pierre Bourdieu, 1999 Confined in their governmental offices and with their eyes fixed on the opinion polls politicians and state officials are all too often oblivious to the lives of their citizens On the other hand the ordinary men and women who have so much hardship in their lives and so few means to make themselves heard are obliged either to protest outside the official frameworks or remain locked in the silence of their despair Under the direction of Pierre Bourdieu a team of sociologists spent three years analysing the new forms of social suffering that characterize contemporary societies the suffering of those who are denied the means of acquiring a socially dignified existence as well as the suffering of those who are poorly adjusted to the rapidly changing social and economic conditions of their lives Declining housing estates the school the family street level state services the everyday world of social workers teachers and policemen factory workers and white collar clerks the universe of small farmers and artisans of teachers and of the unemployed and partly employed these are just some of the spaces where conflict occurs where specific discriminations and recriminations tensions and contradictions abound and accumulate and where new forms of suffering are produced and experienced by ordinary people in the course of their daily lives This book can be read like a series of short stories the story of a steel worker who was laid off after twenty years in the same factory and who now struggles to support his family on unemployment benefits and a part time job the story of a trade unionist who finds his goals undermined by the changing nature of work the story of a family from Algeria living in a housing estate in the outskirts of Paris whose members have to cope with pervasive everyday forms of racism the story of a school teacher confronted with urban violence and many others as well Reading these stories enables one to understand these people's lives and the forms of social suffering which are part of them And the reader will see that this book offers not only a distinctive method for analysing social life but also another way of practising politics The publication of this book was a major social and political event in France where it topped the best seller list and triggered a wide ranging public debate on inequality politics and social solidarity It will be essential reading for all those including social scientists educators social and political activists and ordinary citizens who are concerned about the current state of contemporary societies

After Bourdieu David L. Swartz, Vera L. Zolberg, 2006-02-28 critical evaluations of his work notably papers by Rodney Benson 4 Rogers Brubaker Nick Crossley and John Myles Indeed it is the 1985 article by Rogers Brubaker that can truly be said to have served as one of the best introductions to Bourdieu's thought for the American social scientific public It is for this reason that we include it in the present collection Intellectual origins orientations We begin by providing an overview of Bourdieu's life as a scholar and a public intellectual The numerous obituaries and memorial tributes that have appeared following Bourdieu's untimely death have revealed something of his life and career but few have stressed the intersection of his social origins career trajectory and public intellectual life with the changing political and social context of France This is precisely what David Swartz's In memoriam attempts to accomplish In it he emphasizes the coincidence of Bourdieu's young and later adulthood with the period of decolonization the May 1968 French university crisis the opening up of France to privatization of many domains previously entrusted to the state that providence and most threatening to post World War II reforms the emergence of globalization as the hegemonic structure of the 21st century An orienting theme throughout Bourdieu's work warns against the partial and fractured views of social reality generated by the fundamental subject object dichotomy that has plagued social science from its very beginning

Weininger, 2024-02-08 This book is the first international reference work to showcase the diversity of ways of using Bourdieu's sociological toolkit in educational research Written by scholars based in Australia Brazil Canada China Indonesia Hong Kong the UK and the USA the handbook provides a unique and cutting edge picture of how Bourdieu has been both used and adapted in educational research globally The book will be useful for those who may only have a cursory knowledge of Bourdieu's tools as well as those who are already familiar with Bourdieu's work. The chapters cover a wide range of topics including educational leadership, teacher preparation, space, place, educational policy, literacy education, marginalised students and student mobility. Class, Place, and Higher Education Alexandra Coleman, 2022-05-19. Higher education is seen to be a means to the good life and is a dominant way societies distribute hope for social mobility. But does higher education deliver on its promise? This book attends to the hopes, experiences and trajectories of working class students and graduates from Western Sydney, an area that is imagined from the outside to be a place of lack and stagnation, the other Sydney. This book challenges the myth that participation in higher education necessarily leads to upward social mobility and traces how the rewards of higher education are unevenly distributed. It considers how visions of a good life are class differentiated and makes an argument for the significance of place when examining experiences of higher education. Rather than focus on university as a means to becoming middle class, Class, Place, and Higher Education examines how university becomes a means to a good life, not the good life, a good life that is embedded in place in working class places like Western Sydney and one that becomes more complex and ambivalent through the process of going to university. Through an attention to the existential and social dimensions of mobility, Alexandra Coleman develops the term 'homely mobility' to describe the pull of people and place and small scale degrees of mobility in place to a better street, the suburb next door, the university down the road. Structural inequalities are an embodied dimension of social being and action and through the lens of 'homely mobility' this book affords insights into broader processes of social reproduction and transformation. Bourdieu, Habitus and Social Research Cristina Costa, Mark Murphy, 2015-07-17. This collection brings together for the first time a set of researchers whose research methodologies centre on Bourdieu's concept of habitus. Full of insight and innovation, the book is an essential read for anyone wanting to know more about approaches to social theory and its application in research.

Bourdieu in the City Loïc Wacquant, 2022-12-16. Building on three decades of comparative research on marginality, ethnicity and penalty in the postindustrial metropolis, Loïc Wacquant offers a novel interpretation of Pierre Bourdieu as urban theorist. He invites us to explore the city through what he calls the trialectic of symbolic space, the mental categories through which we perceive and organize the world, social space, the distribution of capital in its different forms, and physical space, the built environment. On this reading, Bourdieu's topological sociology gives us the tools both to energize and also to challenge the canon of urban studies and to redraw their theoretical landscape. Compact and incisive, Bourdieu in the City will be of interest to students and scholars in sociology, anthropology, geography, urban studies, urban planning, architecture and social theory. Identity, Neoliberalism and Aspiration Garth Stahl, 2015-01-09. In recent years there has been growing concern over the pervasive disparities in academic achievement that are highly influenced by ethnicity, class and gender. Specifically within the neoliberal policy rhetoric there has been concern over underachievement of working class young males, specifically white working class boys. The historic persistence of this pattern and the ominous implication of these trends on the long term life chances of white working class boys has led to a growing chorus that something must be done to intervene This book provides an in depth sociological study exploring the subjectivities within the neoliberal ideology of the school environment in order to expand our understanding of white working class disengagement with education The chapters discuss how white working class boys in three educational sites enact social and learner identities focusing on the practices of meaning making and identity work that the boys experienced and the disjunctures and commonalities between them The book presents an analysis of the varying tensions influencing the identity of each boy and the consequences of these pressures on their engagement with education Drawing on Bourdieu s theoretical tools and a model of egalitarian habitus Identity Neoliberalism and Aspiration Educating white working class boys will be of interest to academics researchers and postgraduate students in the field of sociology of education and those from related disciplines studying class and gender

Interpreting the Chinese Diaspora Guanglun

Michael Mu, Bonnie Pang, 2019-03-28 Globalisation and migration have created a vibrant yet dysphoric world fraught with different and sometimes competing practices and discourses The emergent properties of the modern world inevitably complicate the being doing and thinking of Chinese diasporic populations living in predominantly white English speaking societies This raises questions of what Chineseness is The gradual transfer of power from the West to the East shuffles the relative cultural weights within these societies How do the global power shifts and local cultural vibrancies come to shape the social dispositions and positions of the Chinese diaspora and how does the Chinese diaspora respond to these changes How does primary pedagogic work through family upbringing and secondary pedagogic work through educational socialisation complicate obfuscate and enrich Chineseness Drawing on Pierre Bourdieu s reflexive sociology on relative and relational sociocultural positions Mu and Pang assess how historical contemporary and ongoing changes across social spaces of family school and community come to shape the intergenerational educational cultural and social reproduction of Chinese

diasporic populations The two authors engage in an in depth analysis of the identity work educational socialisation and resilience building of young Chinese Australians and Chinese Canadians in the ever changing lived world The authors look particularly at the tensions and dynamics around the participants life and educational choices the meaning making out of their Chinese bodies in relation to gender race and language and the sociological process of resilience that enculturates them into a system of dispositions and positions required to bounce back from structural constraints

The Spatial Logic of Social Struggle Nikolaus Fogle,2011-04-07 Pierre Bourdieu s theory of practice is widely regarded as among the most innovative and illuminating fruits of recent social thought As evidence mounts that the spatial turn in the social sciences and humanities is no mere theoretical fad but rather an enduring paradigm of social and cultural research Bourdieu s status as a profoundly spatial thinker takes on a renewed importance The Spatial Logic of Social Struggle A Bourdieuan Topology focuses on Bourdieu s philosophy of space arguing that space is at once a condition for social knowledge a methodological instrument and a physical context for practice By considering Bourdieu s theory of social space and fields alongside his several accounts of socially potent physical spaces Nikolaus Fogle develops an understanding of the systematic co determinations between social and physical space He traces Bourdieu s ideas about the spatiality of social life through his investigations of Algerian peasant villages and Gothic cathedrals as well as spaces of class lifestyle and cultural creation revealing that social and environmental struggles are only logical insofar as they are topological He also demonstrates how a Bourdieuan dialectical understanding of social and physical space can be brought to bear on contemporary issues in architecture and urban development This book will be useful and accessible not only to philosophers but also to architects geographers sociologists and other scholars in the social sciences and humanities who take an interest in the social theory of space

Schooling the Rustbelt Kids Pat Thomson, 2020-08-04 A truly exceptional book. Michael W Apple University of Wisconsin Madison. A gripping insight into the local struggles facing disadvantaged schools and a compelling account of the injustice of their place in the bigger picture. Professor Geoff Whitty Director Institute of Education University of London. Schools in disadvantaged areas are struggling in the current economic and political environment. Like schools everywhere they are being asked to do more with less but they face more obstacles. In recent years education policy has shifted from a holistic approach to learning to a focus on narrow educational outcomes spelling reading and writing. Thomson shows that this approach penalises disadvantaged schools and argues that educational and social disadvantage are inextricably linked in children's everyday lives. Examining primary and secondary schools in disadvantaged areas in a post industrial rustbelt city. Schooling the Rustbelt Kids reopens the debate about inequality in schooling. It provides concrete evidence that typical government policies in the Western world are not working and that they are helping to create a permanent underclass. Thomson outlines an alternative whole of government approach to policy which builds on those school programs that do make a real difference to educational outcomes. Thomson also emphasises the influence of local geography. Schools are coloured by particular neighbourhoods.
