The Wire And Philosophy The Wire And Philosophy:

The Wire and Philosophy David Bzdak, Joanna Crosby, Seth Vannatta, 2013 By many accounts HBO's The Wire was and remains the greatest and most important television drama of all time. Conceived by writers David Simon and ex-Baltimore homicide detective Ed Burns, this five-season, sixty-episode tour de force has raised the bar for compelling intelligent television production. With each season addressing a different arena of life in the city of Baltimore and each season's narratives tapping into those from previous seasons, The Wire was able to reveal the overlapping crisscrossing and colliding realities that shape if not control the people, institutions, and culture of the modern American city. The Wire and Philosophy celebrates this show's realism as well as its intellectual and philosophical clarity. Selected philosophers who are fans of The Wire tap into these conflicts and interconnections to expose the underlying philosophical issues and assumptions and pursue questions such as: can cops really tell whether they are smarter than their perps? Or do they fall victim to intellectual vanity? Do individuals really have free will to resist the temptations of gangs, drugs, or corruption that surround them? Is David Simon a modern-day Marx who sees capitalism leading ultimately to its own collapse, or is Baltimore's story uniquely its own?

Better Living through TV Steven A. Benko, 2022-03-25 Watching television need not be a passive activity or simply for entertainment purposes. Television can be the site of important identity work and moral reflection. Audiences can learn about themselves, what matters to them, and how to relate to others by thinking about the implicit and explicit moral messages in the shows they watch. Better Living through TV: Contemporary TV and Moral Identity Formation analyzes the possibility of identifying and adopting moral values from television shows that aired during the latest Golden Era of television and Peak TV. The diversity of shows and approaches to moral becoming demonstrate how television during these eras took advantage of new technologies to become more film-like in both production quality and content. The increased depth of characterization and explosion of content across streaming and broadcast channels gave viewers a diversity of worlds and moral values to explore. The possibility of finding a moral in the stories told on popular shows such as The Sopranos, Breaking Bad, The Wire, and The Good Place, as well as lesser-known shows such as Letterkenny and The Unicorn, are explored in a way that centers television viewing as a site for moral identity formation. Industrial Arts Index, 1923 New Television Martin

Shuster, 2017-11-24 Even though it's frequently asserted that we are living in a golden age of scripted television, television as a medium is still not taken seriously as an artistic art form, nor has the stigma of television as chewing gum for the mind really disappeared. Philosopher Martin Shuster argues that television is the modern art form full of promise and urgency, and in New Television he offers a strong philosophical justification for its importance. Through careful analysis of shows including The Wire, Justified, and Weeds, among others, and European and Anglophone philosophers such as Stanley Cavell, Hannah Arendt, Martin Heidegger, and John Rawls, Shuster reveals how various contemporary television series engage deeply with aesthetic and philosophical issues in modernism and modernity. What unifies the aesthetic and philosophical ambitions of new television is a commitment to portraying and exploring the family as the last site of political possibility in a world otherwise bereft of any other sources of traditional authority consequently at the heart of new television are profound political stakes
