The Wow Factor The Art Of Writing A Novel:

The WOW Factor Robert C. Powers, 2006 Compared to how to books that present the reader with a confusing array of difficult formulae and procedures this book is refreshingly different Writing a novel is freeform art based on a few simple principles The most important thing the aspiring writer can do to fulfill their dream is to start This book is a quick entertaining read and explains the art of writing a novel It gives the reader many examples of what to do and what not to do as they begin to write their first novel with the author as he writes the rough through for The Unknown Horizon a novel of the Chesapeake Native Americans in the year 1607

The Wow Factor Anne Bamford, 2006 More than ever before the arts are shaping and influencing our daily lives through the media and the creative industries The arts are no longer confined to museums and theatres but are adding value to our national economies and improving the quality of education This has implications for arts education However unlike other subjects taught at schools the arts have rarely made their purpose clear Why are they taught What is good arts education And what are the benefits of teaching creative subjects or using creative ways to teach In 2004 Professor Anne Bamford conducted the first international analysis of arts education research for UNESCO in partnership with IFACCA and the Australia Council Comparing data and case studies from more than 60 countries the book analyses the differences between education in the arts and education through the arts While appreciating that arts programmes are embedded in their unique social and cultural contexts Professor Bamford develops internationally comparable standards for quality arts education In addition she identifies a number of concrete educational cultural and social benefits of arts education This definitive work is of major interest to policy makers educators and artists Professor Anne Bamford is Director of the Engine Room at the University of the Arts London and has an international reputation for her research in arts education emerging literacies and visual communication Through her research as a World Scholar for UNESCO she has pursued issues of innovation social impact and equity and diversity She has conducted major national impact and evaluation studies for the governments of Denmark The Netherlands Belgium and Australia
