On Craftsmanship Christopher Frayling, 2012-06-18

Craftsmanship has again become fashionable in high places just as it did in the last few recessions. The concept of craftsmanship has never been as relevant and timely as it is today. Assailed on all sides by among many other tendencies: flexible working, short-termism, portfolio careers, quick-fix training and the cult of celebrity, it has recently re-entered public debate with a new sense of urgency. Why? A bestseller in hardback, this series of linked essays by the man who ran the Royal College of Art for many years is now available in paperback and explores the crafts in education, in history and literature in the contemporary arts landscape in the language of the digital age, taking an unsentimental, hard-headed look at craftsmanship today. Only when the romantic cobwebs have been blown away, it argues, can the key importance of the crafts be fully understood.

Design Research Through Practice Ilpo Koskinen, John Zimmerman, Thomas Binder, Johan Redstrom, Stephan Wensveen, 2011-09-29. Design Research Through Practice: From the Lab Field and Showroom focuses on one type of contemporary design research known as constructive design research. It looks at three approaches to constructive design research: Lab Field and Showroom. The book shows how theory, research practice and the social environment create commonalities between these approaches. It illustrates how one can successfully integrate design and research based on work carried out in industrial design and interaction design. The book begins with an overview of the rise of constructive design research as well as constructive research programs and methodologies. It then describes the logic of studying design in the laboratory, design ethnography and field work and the origins of the Showroom and its foundation on art and design rather than on science or the social sciences. It also discusses the theoretical background of constructive design research along with modeling and prototyping of design items. Finally, it considers recent work in Lab that focuses on action and the body instead of thinking and knowing. Many kinds of designers and people interested in design will find this book extremely helpful. Gathers design research experts from traditional lab, science, social science, art, industrial design, UX and HCI to lend tested practices and how they can be used in a variety of design projects. Provides a multidisciplinary story of the whole design process with proven and teachable techniques that can solve both academic and practical problems. Presents key examples illustrating how research is applied and vignettes summarizing the key how-to details of specific projects.

Art, Design and Science, Engineering and Medicine Frontier Collaborations The National Academies Keck Futures Initiative, 2016-09-24. Science and art were not always two separate entities. Historically, times of great scientific progress occurred during profound movements in art, the two disciplines working together to enrich and expand humanity's understanding of its place in this cosmos. Only recently has a dividing line been drawn, and this seeming dichotomy misses some of the fundamental similarities between the two endeavors. At the National Academies Keck Futures Initiative Conference on Art, Design and Science, Engineering and Medicine Frontier Collaborations: Ideation, Translation and Realization, participants spent 3 days exploring diverse challenges at the interface of science, engineering and medicine. They were arranged into Seed Groups that were intentionally diverse to encourage the generation of new approaches by combining a range of different types of contributions The teams included creative practitioners from the fields of art design communications science engineering and medicine as well as representatives from private and public funding agencies universities businesses journals and the science media
