When People Come First Critical Studies In Global Health:

When People Come First João Biehl, Adriana Petryna, 2013-07-07 A people centered approach to global health When People Come First critically assesses the expanding field of global health It brings together an international and interdisciplinary group of scholars to address the medical social political and economic dimensions of the global health enterprise through vivid case studies and bold conceptual work The book demonstrates the crucial role of ethnography as an empirical lantern in global health arguing for a more comprehensive people centered approach Topics include the limits of technological quick fixes in disease control the moral economy of global health science the unexpected effects of massive treatment rollouts in resource poor contexts and how right to health activism coalesces with the increased influence of the pharmaceutical industry on health care The contributors explore the altered landscapes left behind after programs scale up break down or move on We learn that disease is really never just one thing technology delivery does not equate with care and biology and technology interact in ways we cannot always predict The most effective solutions may well be found in people themselves who consistently exceed the projections of experts and the medical scientific political and humanitarian frameworks in which they are cast When People Come First sets a new research agenda in global health and social theory and challenges us to rethink the relationships between care rights health and economic futures

Global Health and Geographical Imaginaries Clare Herrick,David Reubi,2017-03-16 To date geography has not yet carved out a disciplinary niche within the diffuse domain that constitutes global health However the compulsion to do and understand global health emerges largely from contexts that geography has long engaged with urbanisation globalisation political economy risk vulnerability lifestyles geopolitics culture governance development and the environment Moreover global health brings with it an innate powerful and politicising spatial logic that is only now starting to emerge as an object of enquiry This book aims to draw attention to and showcase the wealth of existing and emergent geographical contributions to what has recently been termed critical global health studies Geographical perspectives this collection argues are essential to bringing new and critical perspectives to bear on the inherent complexities and interconnectedness of global health problems and purported solutions Thus rather than rehearsing the frequent critique that global health is more a set of problems than a coherent disciplinary approach to ameliorating the health of all and redressing global bio inequalities this collection seeks to explore what these problems might represent and the geographical imaginaries inherent in their constitution This unique volume of geographical writings on global health not only deepens social scientific engagements with health itself but in so doing brings forth a series of new conceptual methodological and empirical contributions to social scientific multidisciplinary scholarship

Biosocial Worlds Jens Seeberg, Andreas Roepstorff, Lotte Meinert, 2020-09-29 Biosocial Worlds presents state of the art contributions to anthropological reflections on the porous boundaries between human and non human life biosocial worlds Based on changing understandings of biology and the social it explores what it means to be human in these worlds Growing separation of scientific disciplines for more than a century has maintained a separation of the natural and the social that has created a space for projections between the two Such projections carry a directional causality and so constitute powerful means to establish discursive authority While arguing against the separation of the biological and the social in the study of human and non human life it remains important to unfold the consequences of their discursive separation Based on examples from

Botswana Denmark Mexico the Netherlands Uganda the UK and USA the volume explores what has been created in the space between the social and the natural with a view to rethink the biosocial Health topics in the book include diabetes trauma cancer HIV tuberculosis prevention of neonatal disease and wider issues of epigenetics Many of the chapters engage with constructions of health and disease in a wide range of environments and engage with analysis of the concept of environment Anthropological reflection and ethnographic case studies explore how health and environment are entangled in ways that move their relation beyond interdependence to one of inseparability The subtitle of this volume captures these insights through the concept of health environment seeking to move the engagement of anthropology and biology beyond deterministic projections Anthropologies of Cancer in Transnational Worlds Holly F. Mathews, Nancy J. Burke, Eirini Kampriani, 2015-06-26 Cancer is a transnational condition involving the unprecedented flow of health information technologies and people across national borders Such movement raises questions about the nature of therapeutic citizenship how and where structurally vulnerable populations obtain care and the political geography of blame associated with this disease This volume brings together cutting edge anthropological research carried out across North and South America Europe Africa and Asia representing low middle and high resource countries with a diversity of national health care systems Contributors ethnographically map the varied nature of cancer experiences and articulate the multiplicity of meanings that survivorship risk charity and care entail They explore institutional frameworks shaping local responses to cancer and underlying political forces and structural variables Chapter 3 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 3.0 license https://s3.us-west-2.amazonaws.com/tandfbis-rt-files/docs/Open+Access+Chapters/9781138776937_oachapter3.pdf A Companion to Medical Anthropology Merrill Singer, Pamela I. Steele, Eric Heinze, 2018-06-14 Ethics and International Relations IR once considered along the margins of the IR field has emerged as one of the most eclectic and interdisciplinary research areas today Yet the same diversity that enriches this field also makes it a difficult one to characterize Is it or should it only be the social scientific pursuit of explaining and understanding how ethics influences the behaviours of actors in international relations Or should it be a field characterized by what the world should be like based on philosophical normative and policy based arguments This Handbook suggests that it can actually be both as the contributions contained therein demonstrate how those two conceptions of Ethics and International Relations are inherently linked Seeking to both provide an overview of the field and to drive debates forward this Handbook is framed by an opening chapter providing a concise and accessible overview of the complex history of the field of Ethics and IR and a conclusion that discusses how the field may progress in the future and what subjects are likely to rise to prominence Within are 44 distinct and original contributions from scholars teaching and researching in the field which are structured around 8 key thematic sections Philosophical Resources International Relations

Theory Religious Traditions International Security and Just War Justice Rights and Global Governance International Intervention Global Economics Environment Health and Migration Drawing together a diverse range of scholars the Routledge Handbook of Ethics and International Relations provides a cutting edge overview of the field by bringing together these eclectic albeit dynamic themes and topics It will be an essential resource for students and scholars alike
