Runes and Roman Letters in Anglo-Saxon Manuscripts Victoria Symons, 2016-10-24 This book presents the first comprehensive study of Anglo Saxon manuscript texts containing runic letters To date there has been no comprehensive study of these works in a single volume although the need for such an examination has long been recognized This is in spite of a growing academic interest in the mise en page of early medieval manuscripts The texts discussed in this study include Old English riddles and elegies the Cynewulfian poems charms Solomon and Saturn I and the Old English Rune Poem The focus of the discussion is on the literary analysis of these texts in their palaeographic and runological contexts Anglo Saxon authors and scribes did not of course operate within a vacuum and so these primary texts are considered alongside relevant epigraphic inscriptions physical objects and historical documents Victoria Symons argues that all of these runic works are in various ways thematically focused on acts of writing visual communication and the nature of the written word The conclusion that emerges over the course of the book is that when encountered in the context of Anglo Saxon manuscripts runic letters consistently represent the written word in a way that Roman letters do not

Promised Bodies Patricia Dailey, 2013-08-27 In the Christian tradition especially in the works of Paul Augustine and the exegetes of the Middle Ages the body is a twofold entity consisting of inner and outer persons that promises to find its true materiality in a time to come A potentially transformative vehicle it is a dynamic mirror that can reflect the work of the divine within and substantially alter its own materiality if receptive to divine grace The writings of Hadewijch of Brabant a thirteenth century beguine engage with this tradition in sophisticated ways both singular to her mysticism and indicative of the theological milieu of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries Crossing linguistic and historical boundaries Patricia Dailey connects the embodied poetics of Hadewijch's visions writings and letters to the work of Julian of Norwich Hildegard of Bingen Marguerite of Oingt and other mystics and visionaries She establishes new criteria to more consistently understand and assess the singularity of women's mystical texts and by underscoring the similarities between men's and women's writings of the time collapses traditional conceptions of gender as they relate to differences in style language interpretative practices forms of literacy and uses of textuality

today's increasingly electronic world we say our personality traits are hard wired and we replay our memories. But we use a different metaphor when we speak of someone reading another's mind or a desire to turn over a new leaf: these phrases refer to the book of the self, an idea that dates from the beginnings of Western culture. Eric Jager traces the history and psychology of the self as text concept from antiquity to the modern day. He focuses especially on the Middle Ages when the metaphor of a book of the heart modeled on the manuscript codex attained its most vivid expressions in literature and art. For instance, medieval saints' legends tell of martyrs whose hearts recorded divine inscriptions; lyrics and romances feature lovers whose hearts are inscribed with their passion; paintings depict hearts as books; and medieval scribes even produced manuscript codices shaped like hearts. The Book of the Heart provides a fresh perspective on the influence of the book as artifact on our language and culture. Reading this book broadens our appreciation of the relationship between things and ideas.

Henry Petroski, author of The Book on the Bookshelf      The Book of God Colin Jager, 2007 The Book of God manages to be at once ambitious, deliberate, and nuanced in its interconnecting conceptions of philosophy and literary criticism.
