Irish Travel Writing John McVeagh, 1996. Covering all aspects of travel since the 12th century, this guide provides a reference on Irish travel literature. The book also examines the tradition and content of tourist guides to Ireland. The information included ranges from diary accounts of journeys undertaken through the country and towns of Ireland, written for the information of others, to private writings such as the 17th-century account by Mary Granville of her journey to Galway. There are also excerpts from the journals and letters of historical figures such as John Wesley and Mary Wollstonecraft. Furthermore, the author has added to the bibliographical data for each entry wherever possible, indicating the itinerary followed by the writer in question.

Ten Days in July Tom Kerr, 2010-08-31. In 1993, Ronald McCaul, the chief strategist of the Provos in Northern Ireland, and Thomas O'Connor, one of their most famous gunmen, escaped from Castlereagh Interrogation Center in Belfast. The two appeared to dissolve into thin air. In July 1998, they reappear in the Republic of Ireland and are arrested by the Garda, the Police Force of the Republic. McCaul, who was sick when arrested, asked O'Connor to take his body home to Wales if he dies. O'Connor agreed to McCaul's request. Within days, McCaul died. Chief Superintendent Patrick T. Kerrigan of the Garda proposed to use O'Connor as a bait to lure members of the Provos into a trap. The trap failed. O'Connor was rescued by the Provos and whisked into Northern Ireland. Kerrigan and his unit became the butt of both official and public criticism. A plan is hatched to transport McCaul's body to Wales, but the authorities from both the Republic and Northern Ireland decided to have McCaul's remains cremated within days. This is to prevent the Provos the opportunity for a public funeral with speeches by the Provos' firebrands. In addition, the British SIS MI 5 were aware of O'Connor's activities from recorded telephone conversations.
