E. Downs,Donna O. Kerner,Stephen P. Reyna,2019-07-19 Originally published in 1991 This volume explores the combination of political and economic forces that influence different levels of food supply The book begins with a discussion of famine theories ranging from cultural ecology to neo Marxism Following this survey is a series of essays by anthropologists geographers economists and development practitioners that explores the role of Western institutions in African famine analyzes famine in particular countries and documents the relationship between famine and gender This book takes an unusually broad look at famine by including analyses of countries where hunger has rarely been studied and by examining African famine from both African and Western perspectives Its concluding proposals for eradicating famine make innovative and provocative contributions to current global debates on food and nutrition The Geography of South Africa Jasper Knight,Christian M. Rogerson,2018-10-03 This edited collection examines contemporary directions in geographical research on South Africa It encompasses a cross section of selected themes of critical importance not only to the discipline of Geography in South Africa but also of relevance to other areas of the Global South All chapters are original contributions providing a state of the art research baseline on key themes in physical human and environmental geography and in understanding the changing geographical landscapes of modern South Africa These contributions set the scene for an understanding of the relationships between modern South Africa and the wider contemporary world including issues of sustainable development and growth in the Global South An Economic Analysis of Rice Production Systems and Production Organization of Rice Farmers in the Gambia Alimami M. Kargbo,1983 Routledge Library Editions: Food Supply and Policy Various,2021-08-29 Reissuing works originally published between 1952 and 1999 this set provides a wide spread of scholarship on issues surrounding food provision throughout the world The earlier books look at import and export changes during times when previous trade routes and options changed while later ones mostly consider food assistance policies poverty and famine and welfare These books cover third world studies economics anthropology politics environment agriculture and population studies as well as food and nutrition Getting to Scale Homi Kharas,Johannes F. Linn,2013-04-15 Visit any developing country and you will find governments international donors NGOs and corporations involved in a range of innovative activities to address the needs of the poor Only a fraction of those that show promise at a localized level however will ever be replicated expanded and sustained to achieve a transformative impact Learning how to expand the reach of proven interventions so that they help larger numbers of poor people scaling up is a fundamental challenge facing the developing world This book improves our understanding of how scaling up can be achieved and what the international community can do to support the process Remarkably little is understood of how to design scalable projects the impediments to reaching scale or the most appropriate pathways for reaching that goal To answer these questions this book features a series of case studies drawn from both the public and private sectors to demonstrate how the scaling up of services for the world's poor can happen By linking public and private experience the authors argue that successful scaling up will not be achieved by either public or private sector efforts alone Rather it will require both public and private efforts working together This book demonstrates that the challenges to scaling up are complex and various but ultimately surmountable It provides an invaluable resource for development practitioners analysts and students on a topic that remains largely unexplored and poorly understood

Development and the African Diaspora Doctor Claire Mercer, Ben Page, Martin Evans, 2009-05-22 There has been much recent celebration of the success of African civil society in forging global connections through an ever growing diaspora Against the background of such celebrations this innovative book sheds light on the diasporic networks home associations whose economic contributions are being used to develop home Despite these networks being part of the flow of migrants resources back to Africa that now outweighs official development assistance the relationship between the flow of capital and social and political change are still poorly understood Looking in particular at Cameroon and Tanzania the authors examine the networks of migrants that have been created by making home associations international They argue that claims in favour of enlarging civil society in Africa must be placed in the broader context of the political economy of migration and wider debates concerning ethnicity and belonging They demonstrate both that diasporic development is distinct from mainstream development and that it is an uneven historical process in which some homes are better placed to take advantage of global connections than others In doing so the book engages critically with the current enthusiasm among policy makers for treating the African diaspora as an untapped resource for combating poverty Its focus on diasporic networks rather than private remittances reveals the particular successes and challenges diasporas face in acting as a group not least in mobilising members of the diaspora to fulfill obligations to home

Lawson,2018-08-16 Originally published in 1972 this study analyses the process of economic growth and social change in the riparian communities of the Lower Volta River in Ghana which came about in large part due to the construction of the Volta dam in 1963 With its completion many of the riparian communities were denied the economic advantages of natural irrigation and water flow for inland fisheries although they did benefit through the emergence of a valuable lake fishery The study found that the socio economic preconditions for a rise in the standard of living had been building up over some time and many social economic and political forms of change had been introduced to change the previous static equilibrium. Such influences began to erode the hitherto unquestioned acceptance of traditional institutions and the stability and security they offered.

ILCA Bulletin No. 26 - February 1987 International Livestock Centre for Africa, Land Use, Land Cover and Soil Sciences - Volume III Willy H. Verheye, 2009-11. This Encyclopedia of Land Use, Land Cover and Soil Sciences is a component of the global Encyclopedia of Life Support Systems (EOLSS), which is an integrated compendium of twenty-one Encyclopedias. Land is one of our most precious assets. It represents space, provides food and shelter, stores and filters water, and it is a base for urban and industrial development, road construction, leisure, and many other social activities. Land is, however, not unlimited in extent, and even when it is physically available, its use is not necessarily free, either because of natural limitations (too cold, too steep, too wet, or too dry, etc.) or because of constraints of access or land tenure. This 7-volume set contains several chapters, each of size 5000-30000 words, with perspectives, applications, and extensive illustrations. It carries state-of-the-art knowledge in the fields of Land Use, Land Cover, and Soil Sciences and is aimed by virtue of the several applications at the following five major target audiences: University and College Students, Educators, Professional Practitioners, Research Personnel, and Policy Analysts, Managers, and Decision Makers, and NGOs.
