Modern British Women Writers Vicki K. Janik, Del Ivan Janik, 2002-11-30 The 20th century witnessed several major cultural movements including modernism anti modernism and postmodernism These and other means of understanding and perceiving the world shaped the literature of that era and with the rise of feminism resulted in a particularly rich body of literature by women writers This reference includes alphabetically arranged entries on 58 British women writers of the 20th century Some of these writers were born in England while others such as Katherine Mansfield and Doris Lessing came from countries of the former Empire or Commonwealth The volume also includes entries for women of color such as Kamala Markandaya and Buchi Emecheta Each entry is written by an expert contributor and includes an overview of the writer's background an analysis of her works an assessment of her achievements and lists of primary and secondary sources The volume closes with a selected general bibliography The Early Novels of Benjamin Disraeli Ann Hawkins, 2024-07-31 Benjamin Disraeli 1804-81 was one of the most important political figures in 19th century Britain However before rising to political prominence he had established himself as a major literary figure This set takes a critical look at Disraeli's early work Justice John Galsworthy, 1910 The Figure of the Witness in International Criminal Tribunals Benjamin Thorne, 2022-10-05 This book analyses how international criminal institutions and their actors legal counsels judges investigators registrars construct witness identity and memory Filling an important gap within transitional justice scholarship this conceptually led and empirically grounded interdisciplinary study takes the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda ICTR as a case study It asks How do legal witnesses of human rights violations contribute to memory production in transitional post conflict societies Witnessing at tribunals entails individuals externalising memories of violations This is commonly construed within the transitional justice legal scholarship as an opportunity for individuals to ensure their memories are entered into an historical record Yet this predominant understanding of witness testimony fails to comprehend the nature of memory Memory construction entails fragments of individual and collective memories within a contestable and contingent framing of the past Accordingly the book challenges the claim that international criminal courts and tribunals are able to produce a collective memory of atrocities as it maintains that witnessing must be understood as a contingent and multi layered discursive process Contributing to the specific analysis of witnessing and memory but also to the broader field of transitional justice this book will appeal to scholars and practitioners in these areas as well as others in legal theory global criminology memory studies international relations and international human rights The Role of the State in Migration Control Aoife McMahon, 2016-11-21 This research questions the seemingly ossified premise that states have an absolute discretion to control international migration Applying Max Weber's theories of legitimacy it determines that while states have certain traditionally legitimate functions migration control as distinct from the determination of citizenship is not one such function Measures of migration control must thus be justified on a rational legal basis that is on a minimal evidential basis Acknowledging the many obstacles states face in carrying out this legitimising exercise it is suggested that a supranational approach at the regional level is the most sustainable long term model with an ultimate aim of achieving inter regional cooperation on migration management on the basis of equality between regions The National, 1915
