

The image shows a spacious, sunlit interior of a house in the Prairie School style. A large, dark wood desk occupies the foreground, with a lamp featuring a segmented, umbrella-like shade. Behind the desk, a large window looks out onto a green landscape. The ceiling is a complex system of dark wood beams and rectangular skylights with decorative glass patterns. The walls are also clad in wood, and the overall atmosphere is warm and architectural.

buildings and Negroponte experimented with the ways people experience artificial intelligence even at architectural scale Steenson investigates how these architects pushed the boundaries of architecture and how their technological experiments pushed the boundaries of technology What did computational cybernetic and artificial intelligence researchers have to gain by engaging with architects and architectural problems And what was this new space that emerged within these collaborations At times Steenson writes the architects in this book characterized themselves as anti architects and their work as anti architecture The projects Steenson examines mostly did not result in constructed buildings but rather in design processes and tools computer programs interfaces digital environments Alexander Wurman Price and Negroponte laid the foundation for many of our contemporary interactive practices from information architecture to interaction design from machine learning to smart cities
