Building Time David Leatherbarrow, 2020-11-26 While most books on architecture concentrate on spatial themes this book explores architecture's temporal dimensions Through a series of close readings of buildings both contemporary and classic it demonstrates the centrality of time in modern architecture and shows why an understanding of time is critical to understanding good architecture All buildings exist in time Even if designed for permanence they change slowly but inevitably They change use they accrue history and meaning they decay all of these processes are inscribed in time So too is the path traced by the sun through a building and the movements of the human body from room to room Time this book argues is the framework for our spatial experience of architecture and a key dimension of a building s structure and significance Building Time presents twelve close readings of buildings and artworks which explore this idea Examining works by distinctive modern architects from Eileen Gray to Ivar Siza and Wang Shu it takes the reader in some cases literally step by step through a built work and provides insightful reflections on the importance of making space for time in architectural design This is a book for both theorists and for architectural designers Through it theorists will find a way to rethink the fundamental premises and aims of design work while designers will rediscover the order and ideas that shape the world around them its buildings interiors and landscapes

Architecture and Sacrament David Wang, 2020-03-25 David Wang s Architecture and Sacrament considers architectural theory from a Christian theological perspective specifically the analogy of being analogia entis The book tracks social and cultural reasons why the theological literature tends to be separate from contemporary architecture theory Wang argues that retrieval of the sacramental outlook embedded within the analogy of being which informed centuries of art and architecture in the West can shed light on current architectural issues such as big box stores the environmental crisis and the loss of sense of community The book critiques the materialist basis of current architectural discourse subsumed largely under the banner of critical theory This volume on how European ideas inform architectural theory complements Wang s previous book A Philosophy of Chinese Architecture Past Present Future and will appeal to architecture students and academics as well as those grappling with the philosophical moorings of all built environments
