Alejandro Tirado-Alcaraz,2017-04-18 Combining perspectives from media studies and political ecology this book analyses socially constructed news regarding three environmental conflicts in South America In recent decades South American political administrations have tied national economies to neo extractive development strategies creating not only vulnerabilities to global commodity boom and bust pricing cycles but also to conflict regarding environmental and cultural degradation from extraction activities Environmental contestations among indigenous peoples environmental and social NGOs state actors and extraction industries receive media attention but how these disputes are covered has implications for understandings of media performance in democratizing nations The authors examine three case studies of environmental contestation in a region that is simultaneously vulnerable to the effects of climate change and yet has become once again dependent on commodity exportation to industrializing and industrialized nations for economic benefit and social development strategies How Journalism Uses History Martin Conboy,2013-09-13

How Journalism Uses History examines the various ways in which journalism uses history and historical sources in order to better understand the relationships between journalists historians and journalism scholars It highlights the ambiguous overlap between the role of the historian and that of the journalist and underlines that there no longer seems to be reason to accept that one begins only where the other ends With Journalism Studies as a developing subject area throughout the world journalism history is becoming a particularly vivacious field As such How Journalism Uses History argues that if historical study of this kind is to achieve its full potential there needs to be a fuller and more consistent engagement with other academics studying the past political social and cultural historians in particular but also scholars working in politics sociology literature and linguistics Contributors in this book discuss the core themes which inform history s relationship with journalism from a wide range of geographical and methodological perspectives They aim to create more ambitious conversations about using journalism both as a source for understanding the past and for clarifying ideas about its role as constituent of the public sphere in using discourse and tradition to connect contemporary audiences with history This book was originally published as a special issue of Journalism Practice Media Compass Aljosha Karim Schapals, Christian Pentzold, 2024-08-22 An extensive and inclusive account of the media environments of 45 countries worldwide In Media Compass A Companion to International Media Landscapes an international team of prominent scholars examines both long term media systems and fluctuating trends in media usage around the world Integrating country specific summaries and cross cutting studies of geopolitical regions this interdisciplinary reference work describes key elements in the political social demographic cultural and economic conditions of media infrastructures and public communication Enabling the mapping of media landscapes internationally Media Compass contains up to date empirical surveys of individual countries and regions as well as cross country comparisons of particular areas of public communication 45 entries each guiding readers from a general summary to a more in depth discussion of a country s specific media landscape address formative conditions and circumstances historical background and development current issues and challenges and more Designed to facilitate quick lookup of individual entries as well as comparative readings of a country s position in the wider media environment Media Compass A Companion to International Media Landscapes is an invaluable addition to libraries and institutions of higher education and a must read volume for students educators scholars and practitioners working in communication and media studies journalism and media production
