

The Tiger

compared to some of the opposition hadn't handicapped the first Triumphs and it hasn't held the Tiger back, especially in the important German market where it is a top seller.

Judging their market as cleverly as ever, the factory held back another new model for the International Bike Show at the Birmingham NEC. This was the Daytona 1200, an out and out speed machine with a hidden political agenda. Its high-compression, 147 PS engine gave it brutal straight-line performance in much the same way as the big Kawasakis of the mid-'80s, and like them it wasn't too clever in the corners because of its weight and length. The bike was built as much to show that Triumph could do it as to sell in big numbers. It also had the secondary function of thumbing the corporate nose at the UK importers' gentlemen's agreement not to bring in bikes of over 125 PS.

Next year's NEC show saw two more new Triumphs, both reworkings of what was now regarded as a modern classic, the 900 triple. The Speed Triple was a clever reincarnation of the British cafe, racer style, complete with clip-on handlebars and rear-set footrests. The big three-cylinder engine in standard tune got an all-black finish with black chrome pipes and silencers for the appropriately mean look. Black wheel rims and new bodywork completed a superbly styled bike available with black or yellow bodywork, the Speed Triple was the star of the show, a bike with an attitude. A one-make race series with generous prize money helped give the factory's products some race-track credibility that would otherwise have been impossible to come by.

The other newcomer was a more radical project, the Daytona Super III. Externally the motor looked like the usual 900 cc three, but a lot of work by Cosworth Engineering was hidden under the cases, notably reworked heads, ports and cam profiles. The result was 115 PS as opposed to the standard 900 Daytona's 98. New six-piston callipers built and designed by Triumph, not bought in, stopped the plot which was a couple of kilos lighter thanks to judicious use of lightweight carbon-fibre materials.

But the new Triumphs aren't really about out-and-out performance, as Rolls Royce like to say power is 'adequate' and quite enough for real world motorcycling as evidenced by commercial success in demanding markets like Germany where Triumph's strict quality control and top-quality finish are paying dividends. One German magazine, MO, ran an early Trident for 100,000 km with hardly a problem. When it was stripped for inspection at the Hinckley factory the engine was found to be as good as new, a tribute to the original design and production engineering.

Triumphs in America

Triumph's next big step was into the US market, where the old company was so strong in the post-war years when the only competition was Harley-Davidson and where there is considerable affection for the marque. The name Triumph chose to spearhead this new challenge is Thunderbird, a trademark sourced in Native American mythology. This time the famous name adorns yet another version of the 900 triple but this time heavily restyled and in a retro package. This is the first of the new-generation Triumph motors designed to be looked at without a frowning covering most of it. Dummy cooling fins give it the look of an air-cooled motor, the logo was cast into the clutch cover, and there were soft
