

8.4 Torsional damper

The engine is connected to the input shaft in the transmission, via a torsional damper, instead of the torque converter used by more conventional automatic transmissions.

This torsional damper is not a part of the transmission.

9. Towing of the Vehicle

The VTIF transmission must not be towed. This is because there is no oil pressure in the primary pulley unless the engine is running and belt slip would therefore occur. Recovery must be conducted with the front wheels lifted clear of the ground (suspended tow).

With a manual transmission it still is possible to start the car by pushing or towing. This is not possible with the CVT because there will be no oil pressure (as the engine and the pump are not running) meaning that both clutches are disengaged and that there is no connection between the engine and wheels.

10. Drain & Refill

A refill of the transmission oil is necessary every 45.000 km.
For this purpose, the gearbox is equipped with an oil drain plug and a top filler plug.
