Born and raised in rural West Virginia Jonathan Corcoran was the youngest and only son of three siblings in a family balanced on the precipice of poverty His mother a traditional evangelical and insular woman who had survived abuse and abandonment was often his only ally Together they navigated a strained homelife dominated by his distant gambling addicted father and shared a seemingly unbreakable bond When Corcoran left home to attend Brown University a chasm between his upbringing and his reality began to open As his horizons and experiences expanded he formed new bonds beyond bloodlines and met the upper middle class Jewish man who would become his husband But this authentic life would not be easy and Corcoran was forever changed when his mother disowned him after discovering his truth In the ensuing fifteen years the two would come together only to violently spring apart As the COVID 19 pandemic raged in 2020 the cycle finally ended when he received the news that his mother had died In No Son of Mine Corcoran traces his messy estrangement from his mother through lost geographies the trees mountains and streams that were once his birthright as well as the lost relationships with friends and family and the sense of home that were stripped away when she said he was no longer her son A biography nestled inside a memoir No Son of Mine is Corcoran s story of alienation and his attempts to understand his mother s choice to cut him out of her life Through grief anger questioning and growth Corcoran explores the entwined yet separate histories and identities of his mother and himself
