Description that you may become partakers in the divine nature 2 Peter 1:4 The theme of deification intimately touches on human identity and the actualization of humanity's ultimate purpose. It is predominantly an anthropological and soteriological expression of Christian theology. At the same time it testifies to the identity of a Christian God, divine universal design and God's economy where the trinitarian and christological apprehension receives the central place. Theosis, both on an individual and cosmic scale, is not exiguous in its eschatological perspective either. The testimony of theosis is testimony to the inexplicable mystery of divine intimacy. Deification penetrates all spheres of human existence and can be seen as an answer to most pending ultimate questions. It is essentially practical in its manifestation and uplifting in its content but nevertheless always evasive and arcane in its comprehension.

From the Introduction: This book contains biblical and historical theological essays that offer innovative approaches to the issue of theosis. The interconnections between the theology of deification and the doctrines of the Trinity, Christology, anthropology, protology, hamartiology, soteriology and eschatology are made manifest in these fascinating new studies. It is aimed both at those who are already students of theosis and at those who are looking for an introductory text. It also contains a comprehensive and up-to-date bibliography for those seeking further resources on the theme.

Endorsements: Theosis is back and it is here to stay no longer as the focus solely of one stream of the Christian tradition but as a fully biblical and ecumenical account of salvation.

Vladimir Kharlamov with his colleagues offers us another volume of significant essays on theosis/deification in the Christian tradition from the evangelists to contemporary Baptists. They add to the burgeoning literature on the central reality of Christian faith: transformative participation in the very life of the Triune God.

Michael J. Gorman, The Ecumenical Institute of Theology, St. Mary's Seminary University, Baltimore, MD

Vladimir Kharlamov has successfully gathered a lively collection of studies covering foundational aspects of the ancient concept of theosis. The chapters range from the teachings of Jesus and the Fathers to contemporary attempts to appropriate the notion today, its relevance to the Reformed tradition, its importance to Christian ecology. The book is an exciting example of the energy that still exists in putting the ancient tradition in discussion with the pressing concerns of the world.

V. Revd. Dr. John A. McGuckin, Nielsen Professor of Ancient Byzantine Christian History, Union Theological Seminary, New York

Vladimir Kharlamov has assembled a rich and remarkable volume that will offer profound gifts to the church's theological reflection. Whether one is already a student of the doctrine of theosis or is seeking an introduction to its riches, s/he will do well to take this volume and read it carefully.

Philip E. Thompson, Professor of Systematic Theology and Christian Heritage, Sioux Falls Seminary, Sioux Falls, South Dakota

A well-researched, carefully edited and welcomed volume on the amazing, engaging, enduring, bold and bewildering notions of deifying grace in Scripture, historical theology, ecumenical discussion and contemporary reflection.

Vladimir Kharlamov, as editor, expertly navigates students of Scripture and seasoned scholars through the complexities of theosis from East to West, from historical to contemporary contexts and succeeds in connecting esoteric ideas, Eastern Orthodox spirituality and Baptist theologies in one volume.

Recovering the Evangelical Sacrament Anthony R. Cross,2012-12-06 The subject of baptism continues to be of considerable interest though it frequently appears within broader studies of sacraments liturgy worship and ecumenical studies and within confessional bounds credobaptist or paedobaptist yet it is rarely discussed by Evangelicals This book however is neither an apologetic for credobaptism nor paedobaptism rather Cross believes that as practiced today both forms are a departure from New Testament baptism which he maintains was an integral part of becoming a Christian and part of the proclaimed gospel He argues that the one baptism of Ephesians 4:5 is conversion baptism and that the baptism referred to in the various New Testament strata refers to this one baptism of Spirit and water The study sets out the case for this interpretation and contends that in key passages baptism is an example of synecdoche The case is then made for a sacramental interpretation of baptism from a thoroughgoing Evangelical perspective Cross concludes with reflections on the necessity of baptismal reform and the relevance of a return to conversion baptism for the contemporary church in a post-Christian post Christendom mission setting
