Interpreting Historical Keyboard Music Andrew Woolley,John Kitchen,2016-05-23 Research in the field of keyboard studies especially when intimately connected with issues of performance is often concerned with the immediate working environments and practices of musicians of the past An important pedagogical tool the keyboard has served as the workbench of countless musicians over the centuries In the process it has shaped the ways in which many historical musicians achieved their aspirations and went about meeting creative challenges In recent decades interest has turned towards a contextualized understanding of creative processes in music and keyboard studies appears well placed to contribute to the exploration of this wider concern The nineteen essays collected here encompass the range of research in the field bringing together contributions from performers organologists and music historians Questions relevant to issues of creative practice in various historical contexts and of interpretative issues faced today form a guiding thread Its scope is wide ranging with contributions covering the mid sixteenth to early twentieth century It is also inclusive encompassing the diverse range of approaches to the field of contemporary keyboard studies Collectively the essays form a survey of the ways in which the study of keyboard performance can enrich our understanding of musical life in a given period

stories in Listening to China exploring how the sonic encounter with China shaped perceptions of Europe's own musical development Through these stories Irvine not only investigates how the Sino Western encounter sounded but also traces the West's shifting response to China As the trading relationships between China and the West broke down travelers and music theorists abandoned the vision of shared musical approaches focusing instead on China's noisiness and sonic disorder and finding less to like in its music At the same time Irvine reconsiders the idea of a specifically Western music history revealing that it was comparison with China the great other that helped this idea emerge Ultimately Irvine draws attention to the ways Western ears were implicated in the colonial and imperial project in China as well as to China's importance to the construction of musical knowledge during and after the European Enlightenment Timely and original Listening to China is a must read for music scholars and historians of China alike A Schoenberg Reader Joseph Auner, 2008-10-01 Arnold

Zealand within the international discourse of postcolonial heritage and to place them within the mainstream of manuscript studies by drawing attention to their intrinsic significance and their relationship with manuscripts held in overseas collections Part One focuses on the motives and historical circumstances underlying the formation of the principal collections and the subsequent changes in the ways that this heritage has been regarded Three of the essays centre upon the bibliophiles who donated their manuscripts to public libraries Others consider specific manuscripts as indices of changing attitudes to European particularly British cultural heritage National identity pedagogy and curatorial practices are among the issues canvassed Part Two consists of new scholarly studies of particular manuscripts which examine them in relation to the cultural and documentary context in which they were produced or transmitted Manuscripts studied include a twelfth century copy of music treatises by Boethius and Guido of Arezzo probably from Christ Church Canterbury a Perugian breviary owned by an Augustinian friar Antonio da Macerata a book of hours adapted for Scottish use the Rossdhu Hours and a fragment of an early fifteenth century book of hours produced by a London workshop and added to the Hours of Margery Fitzherbert Migrations is an imaginative and ambitious contribution to twenty first century manuscript studies Most notably the editors have invited manuscript scholars to address the issues raised by the manuscripts location New Zealand itself and its colonial history become tools for thinking with about dispersal about cultural memory about access about the meanings ascribed to artefacts The editors have assembled a distinguished group of scholars in order to produce a collection of essays that is a coherent whole and at the same time individually driven by the intellectual curiosity that is the true sign of distinction The book is a triumph Professor Felicity Riddy Deputy Vice Chancellor and Professor of English University of York This excellent book makes a major contribution to the study of medieval manuscript collections in New Zealand and will open up a little known area of extremely important material to an international audience The quality of the scholarship throughout the book is very high and the essays on the individual manuscripts present the material in the context of recent new approaches in the study of medieval and Early Modern manuscripts Nigel Morgan Hon Professor of Art History University of Cambridge Head of Research Parker Library MSS Project Corpus Christi College
