Holmes, 2006-12-14 Romance in modern times is the most widely read yet the most critically despised of genres Associated almost entirely with women as readers and as writers its popularity has been argued by gender traditionalists to confirm women's innate sentimentality while feminist critics have often condemned the genre as a dangerous opiate for the female masses This study adopts the more positive perspective of critics such as Janice Radway and takes seriously the pleasure that women readers consistently seem to find in romance Drawing on the social constructionist feminism of Simone de Beauvoir the psychoanalytical theories of Jessica Benjamin and a range of social theorists from Bourdieu to Zygmunt Bauman the book uncovers the history of romantic fiction in France from the late nineteenth to the early twenty first century and explores its place in women's lives and imaginations Romance is not defined as it usually is solely in terms of its mass market form Rather the history of women's popular fiction is traced in its full context as one dimension of a literary story that encompasses the mainstream or middlebrow as well as high culture Thus this study ranges from the formula romance from the pious but popular Delly to global brand Harlequin through middlebrow bestsellers like Marcelle Tinayre Fran oise Sagan R gine Deforges to critically esteemed stories of love in the work of such authors as Colette Simone de Beauvoir Elsa Triolet and Camille Laurens Criss crossing the boundaries of taste and class as well as those of sexual orientation the romance has been at times reactionary at others progressive utopian and contestatory It has played an important part in the lives of twentieth century women providing both a source of imaginative escape and a fictional space in which to rehearse and make sense of identity relationship and desire

Mediating Religious Cultures in Early Modern Europe Torrance Kirby, Matthew Milner, 2014-07-03 In recent years writing on early modern culture has turned from examining the upheavals of the Reformation as the ruptured birth of early modernity out of the late medieval towards a striking emphasis on processes of continuity transition and adaptation No longer is the religious seen as institutional or doctrinaire but rather as a cultural and social phenomenon that exceeds the rigid parameters of modern definition Recent analyses of early modern cultures offer nuanced accounts that move beyond the limits of traditional historiography and even the bounds of religious studies At their centre is recognition that the scope of the religious can never be extricated from early modern culture Despite its many conflicts and tensions the lingua franca for cultural self understanding of the early modern period remains ineluctably religious The early modern world wrestled with the radical challenges concerning the nature of belief within the confines of church or worship but also beyond them This process of negotiation was complex and fuelled European social dynamics Without religion we cannot begin to comprehend the myriad facets of early modern life from markets to new forms of art to public and private associations In discussions of images the Eucharist suicide music street lighting or whether or not the sensible natural world represented an otherworldly divine religion was the fundamental preoccupation of the age Yet even in contexts where unbelief might be considered we find the religious providing the fundamental terminology for explicating the secular theories and views which sought to undermine it as a valid aspect of human life This collection of essays takes up these themes in diverse ways We move from the 15th century to the 18th from the core problem of sacramental mediation of the divine within the strict parameters of eucharistic and devotional life through discussion of images and iconoclasm music and word to more blurred contexts of death street life and atheism Throughout the early modern period the very processes of adaption even change itself were framed by religious concepts and conceits
