Things can change if you stop accepting the unacceptable.

Climate Change and Human Systems

Chiara Bernardini,2024-05-23 This book offers a thorough review of studies on climate change and urban adaptation strategies and plans It takes the moves from the identification of three primary barriers to adaptation including the uncertainty surrounding climate change and its evolution the complexity of human systems and the widespread perception that climate change impacts are improbable From this analysis arises the idea of the need to adopt a new approach to the climate issue the soft approach This approach focuses on the intangible and organizational aspects of systems and is proposed as a valid alternative in contexts of high uncertainty It complements the structural hard option in response to emerging risks Furthermore soft solutions have intrinsic characteristics of flexibility reversibility adaptability scalability and cost effectiveness making them often low regret and co benefit Based on these principles the book suggests that a climate wise reorganization of urban services could constitute an effective soft strategy to help cities tackle the impacts of climate change and investigates the potential for Urban Facility Management services to evolve through their integration with climate information The concept of urban Adaptation services which integrate knowledge and practices of climate services into urban services management processes is an innovative perspective which stems from a reading of reality through the lens of specific needs
