

An aerial photograph of the University of Virginia campus during autumn. The central feature is the Rotunda, a large circular building with a white dome and a portico supported by columns. It is connected by long, straight walkways to other buildings, including the Old Cabell Hall on the left and the Law School on the right. The surrounding landscape is filled with trees displaying vibrant autumn foliage in shades of orange, yellow, and red. The overall scene is captured from a high angle, providing a comprehensive view of the campus layout and its natural surroundings.
