Richard Cahan

They All Fall Down Richard Nickels Struggle To Save Americas Architecture:

They All Fall Down Richard Cahan, 1994-09-01 Richard Nickel whom I had the delight of knowing during his all too brief life is one of the unsung heroes of Chicago architecture. He was not an architect himself nor a designer. He simply took pictures but what pictures. He was for want of a better description one of the most sensitive of architectural photographers. More than that his life and ironically tragically and poetically his death were fused to Chicago architecture. How he died tells us how he lived for the beauty in the works of Sullivan, Wright and the others. His story is one that must be told. Studs Terkel author. He was completely understanding of architecture and genius and of the quality of the work he was dealing with. He was single minded in his pursuit and dedication to quality in history art and architecture. That is an increasingly rare quality. Ada Louise Huxtable former New York Times architecture critic. Richard was an excellent photographer sensitive and intelligent and a very good craftsman. John Szarkowski former Director Photography Museum of Modern Art New York. Richard Nickel was one of those who saw architecture and who passionately and skillfully pursued its portrayal. He was one of a very small number and to make his work known would be a fundamental service to architects, students and teachers as well as to the art of architecture. Edgar Kaufmann Jr architectural historian Art & Antiques, 1994-09 Architectural Record, 1995 NICEM Update of Nonbook Media National Information Center for Educational Media, 1978
