The Coherence Factor Thomas R. Flanagan, Craig H. Lindell, 2018-11-01 Cogito ergo sum I think therefore I am When Descartes quipped this he erroneously split thinking from feeling He assumed thoughts emerge from a substance other than feeling This is a historic tragedy and it is unnecessary It brings us to a risky end game When we attempt to meld preconceived thought with evoked feelings we come to the craft of spin doctors Instead there is a natural path for connecting thinking and feeling It involves emotional reflection at the time that understandings are created This book draws attention to a form of dialogue which is called design dialogue Design dialogue constructs new meaning from the bottom up Individuals construct new meanings through individual thinking In design dialogue meaning results from group thinking Group thinking is not as simple as thinking individually while being present within a group The design process results in a series of co constructed learning artifacts which ultimately constitute a new understanding The process is concurrently emotional and cognitive and melding emotion and cognition is achievable with effective design dialogue methods The first chapter introduces emotion as the catalyst for considering questions persisting in reflection and concluding a cycle of thought This chapter fills in gaps with the treatment of emotion and cognition The second chapter lays out the sequence of observation taking sensemaking meaning making and perspective taking that are essential steps in thinking Frameworks for thinking in educational traditions focus not so much on the neurological mechanics of the thought process but rather on the overall internalization of a way of understanding things A third chapter presents a methodology for managing a design dialogue Group facilitators generally invent and modify their own approaches for leading design projects This chapter presents a codified approach that offers an advantage of supporting continuous improvement of complex design management methodology And the final chapter considers the emergence of a sapient group mind through the agency of design dialogue This conjectured group mind is considered in the context of the civic infrastructure that is needed to sustain the continual growth of the human superorganism structure As humanity has moved from tribes to cities to institutions and now to globally connected networks each leap forward has been accompanied by profound changes in social practices and belief systems Recent findings from the field of cognitive science have confirmed a suspicion that we have long held about each other Individual thinking is biased and flawed Inclusive and democratically managed discussion deliberation and design all help to identify and dampen flawed understandings The individual mind an essential ingredient in the human spirit is now as a matter of practical necessity bending to the wisdom of a well informed group mind The speed and strength of newly emerging social forces and evolving civic trends point to the conclusion that we are on the threshold for a new way of being This book seeks to evoke reflection on how we can start communicating in a way that prepares us for life in that new future

China's Hidden Children Kay Ann Johnson, 2022-12-22 In the thirty five years since China instituted its One Child Policy 120 000 children mostly girls have left China through international adoption including 85 000 to the United States It is generally assumed that this diaspora is the result of China's approach to population control but there is also the underlying belief that the majority of adoptees are daughters because the One Child Policy often collides with the traditional preference for a son While there is some truth to this it does not tell the full story a story with deep personal resonance to Kay Ann Johnson a China scholar and mother to an adopted Chinese daughter Johnson spent years talking with the Chinese parents driven to relinquish their daughters during the brutal birth planning campaigns of the 1990s and early 2000s and with China's Hidden Children she paints a startlingly different picture The decision to give up a daughter she shows is not a facile one but one almost always fraught with grief and dictated by fear Were it not for the constant threat of punishment for breaching the country's stringent birth planning policies most Chinese parents would have raised their daughters despite the cultural preference for sons With clear understanding and compassion for the families Johnson describes their desperate efforts to conceal the birth of second or third daughters from the authorities As the Chinese government cracked down on those caught concealing an out of plan child strategies for surrendering children changed from arranging adoptions or sending them to live with rural family to secret placement at carefully chosen doorsteps and finally abandonment in public places In the twenty first century China's so called abandoned children have increasingly become stolen children as declining fertility rates have left the dwindling number of children available for adoption more vulnerable to child trafficking In addition government seizures of locally but illegally adopted children and children hidden within their birth families mean that even legal adopters have unknowingly adopted children taken from parents and sent to orphanages The image of the unwanted daughter remains commonplace in Western conceptions of China With China's Hidden Children Johnson reveals the complex web of love secrecy and pain woven in the coerced decision to give one's child up for adoption and the profound negative impact China's birth planning campaigns have on Chinese families
