Effect of a feedback system that is continuously adjusting the machine gun's drive to generate oscillations is illustrated. An external disturbance is a step disturbance. The feedback dramatically improves the system's response to the step disturbance, and the system returns to the steady-state value more quickly.

How to Read: The average value of an investment is 12 percent, but there's more to it than that. In the case of this stock, the average value is 12 percent, but the standard deviation is 10 percent. The standard deviation is a measure of the risk of the investment. The standard deviation is 10 percent, which means that the investment is expected to have a return of 12 percent, but with a standard deviation of 10 percent, the return could be as low as 2 percent or as high as 22 percent.

Keywords: "Responsible" (as a concept, intended to be a neutral label); "I am not." This label is used to describe the unwillingness to acknowledge or accept any degree of culpability. It is frequently used to describe a person who is in the midst of a crisis, placed in this state by the system. The concept of "I am not" is a response to the idea that the system is not responsible. The concept is a response.
