Translation Chapter Late Ming Lulong sai:

The Translation Chapter of the Late Ming Lulong sai Lüe Ákos Bertalan Apatóczy, 2016-03-21 In this book Apatóczy offers a complete reconstruction of the Chinese Mongol vocabulary of the 17th century comprehensive Chinese military work called Lulong sai. The LLSL a document of key importance containing one of the last Sino Mongol glossaries without proper critical reconstruction until now. The work has resulted in a clarification of the earlier sources the compilers of LLSL used in the bilingual part. The author argues that contrary to what scholars have thought of it until now the linguistic corpus of the glossary is not homogeneous and does not represent a single linguistic status it does however shed some light on chronological and philological questions concerning the earlier works incorporated in it. Ancient Texts and Languages of Ethnic Groups Along the Silk Road Johannes Reckel, Merle Schatz, 2021 Central Asia has been dominated by Mongolian and Turkic speaking nations for the past 1300 years. In the 18th and 19th century a Tungus language Manchu became important for Sinkiang Mongolia and the whole of China. Expansion policy of different realms comprehensive commercial activities and the spread of religious ideas facilitated the exchange of cultural knowledge along the Silk Road. Texts and scripts tell us not only about the different groups that were in contact but also reflect details of diplomatic religious and economic ambitions and the languages that were used for these different forms of communication. Several examples of contact induced language change or specific linguistic influence as a result of contacts along the Silk Road invite us to understand more about the frequency intensity and intention of contacts that took place in very different regions connected by the Silk Road. Philology of the Grasslands, 2018-01-16 Professor György Kara an outstanding member of academia celebrated his 80th birthday recently.
