Tuttle Jr.,1993-09-16 Looking out a second story window of her family s quarters at the Pearl Harbor naval base on December 7 1941 eleven year old Jackie Smith could see not only the Rising Sun insignias on the wings of attacking Japanese bombers but the faces of the pilots inside Most American children on the home front during the Second World War saw the enemy only in newsreels and the pages of Life Magazine but from Pearl Harbor on the war with its blackouts air raids and government rationing became a dramatic presence in all of their lives Thirty million Americans relocated 3 700 000 homemakers entered the labor force sparking a national debate over working mothers and latchkey children and millions of enlisted fathers and older brothers suddenly disappeared overseas or to far off army bases By the end of the war 180 000 American children had lost their fathers In Daddy's Gone to War William M Tuttle Jr offers a fascinating and often poignant exploration of wartime America and one of generation's odyssey from childhood to middle age The voices of the home front children are vividly present in excerpts from the 2 500 letters Tuttle solicited from men and women across the country who are now in their fifties and sixties From scrap collection drives and Saturday matinees to the atomic bomb and V J Day here is the Second World War through the eyes of America's children Women relive the frustration of always having to play nurses in neighborhood war games and men remember being both afraid and eager to grow up and go to war themselves Not all were willing to wait Tuttle tells of one twelve year old boy who strode into an Arizona recruiting office and declared I don't need my mother's consent I'm a midget Former home front children recall as though it were yesterday the pain of saying good bye perhaps forever to an enlisting father posted overseas and the sometimes equally unsettling experience of a long absent father's return A pioneering effort to reinvent the way we look at history and childhood Daddy's Gone to War views the experiences of ordinary children through the lens of developmental psychology Tuttle argues that the Second World War left an indelible imprint on the dreams and nightmares of an American generation not only in childhood but in adulthood as well Drawing on his wide ranging research he makes the case that America's wartime belief in democracy and its rightful leadership of the Free World as well as its assumptions about marriage and the family and the need to get ahead remained largely unchallenged until the tumultuous years of the Kennedy assassination Vietnam and Watergate As the hopes and expectations of the home front children changed so did their country's In telling the story of a generation Tuttle provides a vital missing piece of American cultural history

New Zealand's Vietnam War Ian McGibbon, 2014-06-18 This landmark publication provides a comprehensive and authoritative account of New Zealand's involvement in the Vietnam War and will remain the standard reference work on the subject for decades Its publication completes the programme of official war histories that began in 1945 Ian McGibbon's primary focus is what New Zealand did in South Vietnam He traces in detail the operations carried out by New Zealand forces and seeks to illuminate the experience of New Zealand soldiers fighting in a guerrilla war The command structure logistic support and operational context of fighting within a primarily Australian framework are all covered He addresses controversial aspects such as friendly fire incidents atrocity allegations and veterans grievances including over Agent Orange Maori participation in V Force was substantial and its impact is assessed Although the book is inevitably weighted towards the military the efforts of civilians in South Vietnam are also covered in depth The surgical team operated from 1963 until their evacuation from Qui Nhon just days before North Vietnamese columns entered the city Not forgotten are the efforts of courageous civilians like Sister Mary Laurence and of Red Cross volunteers to alleviate misery

among refugees The book also describes the dramatic end of New Zealand's involvement in South Vietnam with the surgical team and the New Zealand Embassy evacuated by RNZAF Bristol Freighters just before the communist victory Finally McGibbon surveys the war's troubled aftermath culminating in the Prime Minister's apology to veterans in 2008
