The Archaeology of Caves in Ireland Marion Dowd, 2015-01-31 The Archaeology of Caves in Ireland is a ground breaking and unique study of the enigmatic unseen and dark silent world of caves People have engaged with caves for the duration of human occupation of the island spanning 10 000 years In prehistory subterranean landscapes were associated with the dead and the spirit world with evidence for burials funerary rituals and votive deposition The advent of Christianity saw the adaptation of caves as homes and places of storage

yet they also continued to feature in religious practice Medieval mythology and modern folklore indicate that caves were considered places of the supernatural being particularly associated with otherworldly women Through a combination of archaeology mythology and popular religion this book takes the reader on a fascinating journey that sheds new light on a hitherto neglected area of research It encourages us to consider what underground activities might reveal about the lives lived aboveground and leaves us in no doubt as to the cultural significance of caves in the past

Fosterage in Medieval Ireland Thomas O'Donnell, 2025-10-01 Fosterage was a central feature of medieval Irish society yet the widespread practice of sending children to another family to be cared for until they reached adulthood is a surprisingly neglected topic Where it has been discussed fosterage is usually conceptualised and treated as a purely legal institution This work seeks to outline the emotional impact of growing up within another family What emerges is a complex picture of deeply felt emotional ties binding the foster family together These emotions are unique to the social practice of fosterage and we see the language and feelings originating within the foster family being used to describe other relationships such as those in the monastery or between humans and animals This book argues that the more we understand how people felt in fosterage the more we understand medieval Ireland
