

HOW RED WINE IS MADE

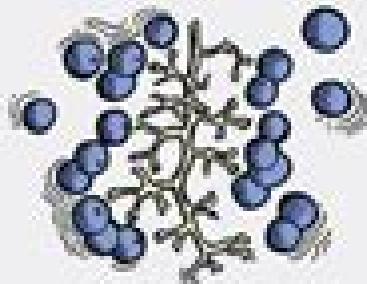

The easiest way to learn how to make wine at home

Harvest grapes

The vintage (harvest) period is the best time to harvest grapes. It's during this time that the grapes are at their peak. The weather is warm and the grapes are ripe. This is the best time to harvest grapes.

Prepare grapes

Grapes are washed and then crushed. Some winemakers remove the seeds and stems. The result is a mixture of juice and pulp. This is then fermented.

Clarification

Clarification is the process of removing any remaining solids from the wine. This is done by filtering the wine through a fine mesh or cloth.

Press

After the fermentation process, the wine is pressed. This is done by using a press to squeeze the juice out of the grapes. The result is a mixture of juice and pulp.

Fermentation

The wine is then fermented. This is done by adding yeast to the juice. The yeast will convert the sugar in the juice into alcohol. This process can take several weeks.

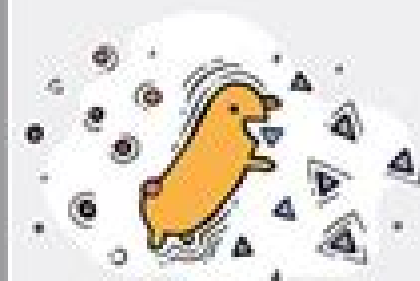

Add yeast

Yeast is added to the wine to start the fermentation process. The yeast will convert the sugar in the wine into alcohol. This process can take several weeks.

Bottling

Bottling is the final step in the wine-making process. The wine is poured into bottles and sealed. This is done to preserve the wine for later consumption.

Malolactic

Malolactic fermentation is a process that occurs in some wines. It is the conversion of malic acid into lactic acid. This process can give the wine a smoother taste.

Aging

The wine is then aged. This is done by storing the wine in wooden barrels. The wood of the barrels will impart flavor to the wine.

Blending

The wine is then blended. This is done by combining different batches of wine. This is done to create a consistent flavor.

Bottle aging

Bottle aging is the final step in the wine-making process. The wine is stored in bottles for a period of time. This is done to allow the wine to develop its flavor.
