Fiction's Inexhaustible Voice Stephen M. Ross, 1989 William Faulkner recognized voice as one of the most distinctive and powerful elements in fiction when he delivered his Nobel Prize acceptance speech describing the last sound at the end of the world as man's puny inexhaustible voice still talking As a testimonial of an artist's faith in his art the speech raised the value of voice to its highest reach for man as one of the props the pillars to help him endure and prevail In Fiction's Inexhaustible Voice Stephen Ross explores the nature of voice in William Faulkner's fiction by examining the various modes of speech and writing that his texts employ Beginning with the proposition that voice is deeply involved in the experience of reading Faulkner Ross uses theoretically grounded notions of voice to propose new ways of explaining how Faulkner's novels and stories express meaning showing how Faulkner used the affective power of voice to induce the reader to forget the silent and originless nature of written fiction Ross departs from previous Faulkner criticism by proceeding not text by text or chronologically but by construction a workable taxonomy which defines the types of voice in Faulkner's fiction phenomenal voice a depicted event or object within the represented fictional world mimetic voice the illusion that a person is speaking psychic voice one heard only in the mind and overheard only through fiction's omniscience and oratorical voice an overtly intertextual voice which derives from a discursive practice Southern oratory recognizable outside the boundaries of any Faulkner text and identifiable as part of Faulkner's biographical and regional heritage In Faulkner's own experience listening was important As he once confided to Malcolm Cowley I listen to the voices and when I put down what the voices say it's right In Fiction's Inexhaustible Voice Ross conducts a careful analysis of this fundamental source of power in Faulkner's fiction concluding that the preponderance of voice imagery represented talking verbalized thought and oratorical rhetoric and posturing makes the novels and stories fundamentally vocal They derive their energy from the play of voices on the imaginative field of written language
