Analysis of Four Poems by Elizabeth Alexander Marc Hempel, 2011-03 Seminar paper from the year 2010 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 2.0 RWTH Aachen University Institut für Anglistik Amerikanistik und Romanistik course Modern and Contemporary American Poetry language English abstract The current President of the United States of America Barack Obama was one of the few who in his inauguration ceremony in January 2009 had a poet read an inaugural poem This delightful tradition that had only been included by three presidents before but that in many ways supports and promotes the art of contemporary American poets was kept alive by Elizabeth Alexander one of the best known and most successful recent African American women poets Her Praise Song For The Day despite some sporadic criticism was a suitable and thoughtful composition for this occasion and it was then that I heard for the first time of Elizabeth Alexander an African American poet Her work and background fascinated me especially because she is a contemporary and her work is so recent and still going on Therefore I decided to examine four of her poems in the term paper at hand Emancipation Ars Poetica 28 African Leave Taking Disorder Race and Ars Poetica 92 Marcus Garvey on Elocution During my research I had to learn that sadly there is a significant lack of research and literature on this and other contemporary authors and therefore this term paper largely consists of my own findings regarding the poems Due to the reason that her personal background and her life have influenced the poems to a notable extent I will start off with a short biographical section on Elizabeth Alexander herself and point out further biographical traits while interpreting the poems in their respective chapters I will finally summarize my findings and present my personal conclusion as regards her way of tackling her topics and her art of writing

Another Throat Ryan Sharp, 2024-10-25 The early twenty first century has seen a sharp rise in Black US poets employing the mask of persona often including and interrogating archival materials as they do so While some have observed this rise and noted its connection to historical figures Ryan Sharp explores it more deeply as a project based historical and poetic practice Sharp examines its sustained use of historical persona and capacity for conjuring Black speakers as a countermeasure against the archival silencing and misrepresentation of Black voices and histories a tactic he theorizes as poetic fabulation through the poetry of Elizabeth Alexander Cornelius Eady Adrian Matejka Patricia Smith Natasha Trethewey and Frank X Walker This poetic practice is not only about looking back but about critically and creatively re imagining the past to expand the possibilities for Black presents and futures Through his argument Sharp demonstrates how the unique aesthetic and rhetorical license afforded to poetry along with the interiority of persona empowers such historically minded projects to be concurrently invested in the curation of Black narratives and identities
