

A close-up photograph of a traditional wooden totem mask. The mask features large, dark, almond-shaped eyes with blue pupils, a wide, open mouth with a red interior, and a dark, textured nose. The wood is carved with intricate patterns, and the mask is painted with blue, red, and gold. The background is a blurred wooden structure.

Metz, 2025-11-15 The Feeling of the Form explores the concept of Einfuehlung the projection of human feelings and life into inanimate forms developed by German aesthetic theorists in the late nineteenth century The word would be translated into English as empathy and migrate in meaning from the aesthetic to the interpersonal sphere Combining close analysis and cultural par history The Feeling of the Form reads literary texts by Georg Buechner Adalbert Stifter and Rainer Maria Rilke alongside philosophical texts by Robert Vischer Vernon Lee and Theodor Lipps to uncover the often uncanny intersections of aesthetic and interpersonal empathy Traveling both backward and forward in time from the 1873 invention of Einfuehlung Joseph R Metz traces the diverse and multidirectional exchanges among subjects and objects feelings and forms and selves and others that together yield an expanded understanding of Einfuehlung empathy and the connections between them In its surprising juxtapositions The Feeling of the Form also shows how nineteenth and early twentieth century texts prefigure a wide array of later thought including affect theory other minds artificial intelligence object oriented ontology and cinema and video game aesthetics Totem and Taboo Sigmund Freud, 2015-11-16 PRIMITIVE man is known to us by the stages of development through which he has passed that is through the inanimate monuments and implements which he has left behind for us through our knowledge of his art his religion and his attitude towards life which we have received either directly or through the medium of legends myths and fairy tales and through the remnants of his ways of thinking that survive in our own manners and customs Moreover in a certain sense he is still our contemporary there are people whom we still consider more closely related to primitive man than to ourselves in whom we therefore recognize the direct descendants and representatives of earlier man We can thus judge the so called savage and semi savage races their psychic life assumes a peculiar interest for us for we can recognize in their psychic life a well preserved early stage of our own development If this assumption is correct a comparison of the Psychology of Primitive Races as taught by folklore with the psychology of the neurotic as it has become known through psychoanalysis will reveal numerous points of correspondence and throw new light on subjects that are more or less familiar to us For outer as well as for inner reasons I am choosing for this comparison those tribes which have been described by ethnographers as being most backward and wretched the aborigines of the youngest continent namely Australia whose fauna has also preserved for us so much that is archaic and no longer to be found elsewhere

Resolving Structural Conflicts Richard E. Rubenstein,2017-01-06 This book analyses how certain types of social systems generate violent conflict and discusses how these systems can be transformed in order to create the conditions for positive peace Resolving Structural Conflicts addresses a key issue in the field of conflict studies what to do about violent conflicts that are not the results of misunderstanding prejudice or malice but the products of a social system that generates violent conflict as part of its normal operations This question poses enormous challenges to those interested in conflict resolution since the solution to this problem involves restructuring social political and cultural systems rather than just calling in a mediator to help people arrive at an agreement This study breaks new ground in showing how local conflicts involving crime police and prisons transnational conflicts involving religious terrorism by groups like ISIS and international conflicts involving Great Power clashes are all produced in large part by elite driven exploitative or oppressive social structures It also presents new ideas about the implications of this structural turn for the practice of conflict resolution emphasizing the need for conflict resolvers to embrace a new politics and to broaden their methods far beyond traditional forms of facilitation Written by a leading scholar this book will be of much interest to students of conflict resolution peace studies war and conflict studies sociology political science and international relations in general Tótem y tabú Sigmund Freud,1967
