Understanding and Governing Sustainable Tourism Mobility Scott A. Cohen, James E.S. Higham, Gossling Stefan, Paul Peeters, 2014-03-26 Despite a growing contribution to climate change tourist and traveller behaviour is currently not acknowledged as an important sector within the development of climate policy Whilst tourists may be increasingly aware of potential impacts on climate change there is evidence that most are unwilling to modify their actual behaviours Influencing individual behaviour in tourism and informing effective governance is therefore an essential part of climate change mitigation This significant volume is the first to explore the psychological and social factors that may contribute to and inhibit sustainable change in the context of tourist and traveller behaviour It draws on a range of disciplines to offer a critical review of the psychological understandings and behavioural aspects of climate change and tourism mobilities in addition to governance and policies based upon psychological behavioural and social mechanisms It therefore provides a more informed understanding of how technology infrastructure and cost distribution can be developed in order to reach stronger mitigation goals whilst ensuring that resistance from consumers for socio psychological reasons are minimized Written by leading academics from a range of disciplinary backgrounds and regions this ground breaking volume is essential reading for all those interested in the effective governance of tourism's contribution to climate change now and in the future

Socialising Tourism Freya Higgins-Desbiolles, Adam Doering, Bobbie Chew Bigby, 2021-07-29 Once

touted as the world's largest industry and also a tool for fostering peace and global understanding tourism has certainly been a major force shaping our world. The recent COVID-19 crisis has led to calls to transform tourism and reset it along more ethical and sustainable lines. It was in this context that calls to socialise tourism emerged (Higgins Desbiolles 2020). This edited volume builds on this work by employing the term Socialising Tourism as a broad conceptual focal point and guiding term for industry activists and academics to rethink tourism for social and ecological justice. Socialising Tourism means reorienting travel and tourism based on the rights interests and safeguarding of traditional ecological and cultural knowledges of local peoples communities and living landscapes. This means making tourism work for the public good and taking seriously the idea of putting the social and ecological before profit and growth as the world re-emerges from the COVID-19 pandemic. This is an essential first step for tourism to be made accountable to the limits of the planet. Concepts discussed include Indigenous culture toxic tourism a theory of care dismantling whiteness decolonial tourism and animal oppression among others all in the context of a post COVID-19 world. This will be essential reading for all upper level students academics and policymakers in the field of tourism. Resilient Destinations and Tourism Jarkko Saarinen, Alison M. Gill, 2018-12-21 Sustainability is one of the most important issues currently facing the tourism sector. Recently the role of resilience thinking has been highlighted in sustainable development discussions as an alternative perspective. This book approaches these concepts as interwoven processes and looks at change through a socioecological lens. Instead of seeing resilience and sustainability as alternative approaches Resilient Destinations and Tourism argues that resilience should be understood as a fundamental part of sustainable tourism thinking for destination systems and calls for better governance in implementation and management. Improving governance is the key issue in sustainable tourism development. The chapters in this edited collection focus on resilient destinations from a governance perspective in which tourism resilience is contextualized as an integral part of pathway creation in the process of moving towards sustainable tourism. The contributions to the book represent a range of theoretical and empirical approaches with a wide international scope. Resilient Destinations and Tourism calls for rethinking the meaning of sustainable development in tourism and looks at how sustainability and resilience could be integrated. This book will appeal to a wide range of research disciplines and students whose modules focus on the relationship between tourism and sustainability planning governance the environment and hazards and disasters.

Anthropocene Ecologies
Mary Mostafanezhad, Roger Norum, 2020-06-09 Anthropocene Ecologies brings political ecology and tourism studies to bear on the Anthropocene. Through a collective examination of political ecologies of the Anthropocene by leading scholars in anthropology geography and tourism studies the book addresses critical themes of gender health conservation agriculture climate change disaster coastal marine management and sustainability. Each chapter theoretically and empirically unravels entanglements of tourism nature and imagination to expose the political ecological drivers of the Anthropocene as a material and symbolic force and its deepening integration with tourism Grounded in ethnographic and qualitative research the volume is interdisciplinary in scope yet linked in its shared focus on the political threat as well as the social potential of the Anthropocene and its imaginaries This collection contributes to emerging scholarship on tourism sustainability and global environmental change in the current geological epoch Anthropocene Ecologies will be of great interest to political ecology focused scholars of tourism socio environmental change and the Anthropocene The chapters were originally published as a special issue in the Journal of Sustainable Tourism

Contemporary geographies of leisure, tourism and mobility, 2004 Tourism and Mobilities Peter M. Burns, Marina Novelli, 2008 Bringing together theoretical and practical issues this edited volume analyses tourism's wider role as an agent for the mobile modern population of the world Offering a thought provoking examination of modern tourism themes range from post modern youth and independent mobility to theoretical texts on hypermobility and citizenship within global space and mobility media and citizenship Co-Creating Tourism Research Carina Ren, Gunnar Thór Jóhannesson, René van der Duim, 2017-12-06 Co creation has become a buzzword in many social science disciplines in business and in tourism studies Given the prominence of co creation surprisingly little discussion has evolved around its implications for research practices and knowledge production as well as what challenges there are for fulfilling the promise of co creation in tourism research This book aims to contribute to this discussion by addressing how tourism research comes together as a collaborative achievement and by exploring different ways of collaborative knowledge production in tourism research It is structured to offer on one hand an introduction to the ontological basis for collaborative research and on the other hand a set of empirical examples of how collaborative knowledge creation can inform tourism design management policy and education The theoretical accounts and empirical cases of this book display how research collaborations can offer modest local yet often impactful insights traces and effects It therefore will be of value for students researchers and academics in tourism studies as well as the wider social sciences

Geographies of Mobilities: Practices, Spaces, Subjects Tim Cresswell, 2016-04-15 Over the past fifteen years or so there has been a widespread and increasing fascination with the theme of mobility across the social sciences and humanities Of course geographers have always had an interest in mobility but as yet they have not viewed this in the same mobility turn as in other disciplines where it has been used to critique the standard approaches to the subjects This text brings together leading academics to provide a revitalised geography of mobilities informed by this wider mobility turn It makes connections between the seemingly disparate sub disciplinary worlds of migration transport and tourism suggesting that each has much to learn from each other through the ontological and epistemological concern for mobility Tourism Governance in the Anthropocene Federica Burini, Andrew Holden, Sara Belotti, 2025-08-30 The book aims to address and reflect on the role of governance of the tourism sector in the era of the Anthropocene also in light of the challenges of climate change and of the Covid 19 pandemic providing an innovative contribution on the discusses lessons for the Future of Tourism in the Anthropocene The definition of the Anthropocene has caused an increase in ethical concerns about our relationship with nature and fears dictated by the environmental crisis Holden 2019 In this scenario the tourism sector has also begun to question these issues and the experience of Covid 19 pandemic has powerfully brought environmental issues back to the center of attention also affecting on the perception of landscapes Burini 2020 The year 2020 brought about a distinct change in tourism demand with a rediscovery of small villages and locations outside the classic tourist itineraries by tourists in search of healthy safe and less frequented places for a new style of vacation but also by workers staying in their second homes and discovering the smart working experience In this context territories and local institutions must activate new forms of multi level governance of the tourism sector to make the most of the new opportunities and satisfy the new principles that are emerging such as the need to develop a more responsible sustainable slow tourism and at the same time to discover the role of digitalization and technologies to better manage tourist fluxes and demand The enhancement of landscapes and the participation of local communities for the promotion of local knowledge is crucial in this new governance process Burini 2019 Belotti 2020 to promote a new way of living that can also contribute to fight the environmental crisis and the depopulation of marginal areas The book will address among others the following research questions how does a destabilizing relationship between human activities and the natural environment relate to tourism How to decrease significant environmental challenges for international tourism that are threatening our landscapes How can local and urban governance encourage of pro environmental behavior by tourists These issues are strongly related to the need to start a general reflection on new forms of governance of the tourism sector in the Anthropocene

Eco-Travel Michael Cronin, 2022-03-17 Human encounters with the natural world are inseparable from the history of travel Nature as fearsome obstacle a wonder to behold or a source of therapeutic refuge is bound up with the story of human mobility Stories of this mobility give readers a sense of the diversity of the natural world how they might interpret and respond to it and how human preoccupations are a help or a hindrance in maintaining bio cultural diversity Travel writing has constantly shaped how humans view the environment from foreign adventures to flight shaming If much of modern travel writing has been based on ready access to environmentally damaging forms of transport how do travel writers deal with a practice that is destroying the world they claim to cherish This Element explores human travel encounters with the environment over the centuries and asks what is the future for travel writing in the age of the Anthropocene

Otherness, Othering and Space in Tourism Futures Lucia Tomassini, 2025-09-15 This book critically examines the concepts of otherness and othering in tourism investigating how human and non human actors are perceived and positioned within tourism spaces It offers theoretical insights on tourism futures spatial entanglements between humans and non humans and practical case studies from researchers and practitioners Drawing from posthumanist theory and its affirmative ethics it challenges traditional anthropocentric views emphasising relationality justice and sustainability in tourism development The volume integrates future studies and theories to explore emerging trends critical reflections and possible utopian and dystopian scenarios for the future of tourism It is a valuable resource for students researchers and professionals in tourism and leisure studies geography and anthropology as well as those exploring posthumanism the spatial turn in the social sciences and critical tourism studies

Green Growth and Travelism Terry DeLacy, Min Jiang, Geoffrey Lipman, Shaun Vorster, 2014-05-09 The green growth paradigm emerged from evolving global strategies that coherently promote a more socially inclusive low carbon resource efficient stable economy with decreasing poverty Opportunities and challenges associated with the paradigm shift are expected to transform the travel and tourism travelism sector in all respects and on a global scale This involves the transformation of the entire travelism value chain as well as the communities in tourism destinations However there is a lack of systematic reports on wide ranging and complex implications of the green growth paradigm for the travelism sector This book focuses on the twin pillars green growth and travelism as key building blocks in exploring an essential multi decade lifestyle change for planetary and human well being through the lenses of concept policy and practice It provides a conceptual discussion of the implications of the new development trend for key players in the travelism system offers case studies from both developed and developing countries that highlight key issues in the transformation towards the green economy and explores the policy settings and frameworks on both the global and national levels that underpin travelism green growth This book offers tourism industry players academics students policy makers and practitioners a comprehensive discussion of the latest progress in green growth and travelism
