The Wrong Guys Tom Wells, Richard A. Leo, 2008 A gripping true story of justice gone awry in which four innocent men separately confess to the 1997 murder and rape of a woman Although the real perpetrator has now been convicted three of the four men remain in prison attesting to the powerful role of confession in the criminal justice system Wells and Leo interweave a narrative following this unfolding case exploring topics of coercive interrogation police perjury and prosecutorial politics in the death penalty This book presents an urgent call for justice and reformation

Blind Injustice Mark Godsey, 2019-02-05 In this unprecedented view from the trenches prosecutor turned champion for the innocent Mark Godsey takes us inside the frailties of the human mind as they unfold in real world wrongful convictions Drawing upon stories from his own career Godsey shares how innate psychological flaws in judges police lawyers and juries coupled with a tough on crime environment can cause investigations to go awry leading to the convictions of innocent people In Blind Injustice Godsey explores distinct psychological human weaknesses inherent in the criminal justice system confirmation bias memory malleability cognitive dissonance bureaucratic denial dehumanization and others and illustrates each with stories from his time as a hard nosed prosecutor and then as an attorney for the Ohio Innocence Project He also lays bare the criminal justice system's internal political pressures How does the fact that judges sheriffs and prosecutors are elected officials influence how they view cases How can defense attorneys support clients when many are overworked and underpaid And how do juries overcome bias leading them to believe that police and expert witnesses know more than they do about what evidence means This book sheds a harsh light on the unintentional yet routine injustices committed by those charged with upholding justice Yet in the end Godsey recommends structural procedural and attitudinal changes aimed at restoring justice to the criminal justice system

Confessions of Murder Alan Warren, R. J. Parker Publishing, 2018-02-24 It started with a frantic call for help from Sebastian Burns and Atif Rafay when the two boys arrived home at just after 2 a m on July 13 1994 and found Rafay's family brutally beaten to death in their Bellevue Washington home Who would kill this well liked family in such a horrific way Police had no physical evidence and no witnesses the case was a dead end It was time to bring in Mr Big Mr Big is a covert investigation where undercover detectives create a fictitious criminal gang and seduce their suspects into joining them in their criminal activities and police would soon gain their suspects confidence and elicit a confession from them Burns and Rafay would eventually confess on tape to undercover detectives and be convicted of the three murders of Rafay's family In the last 25 years the RCMP Royal Canadian Mounted Police have run more than 350 Mr Big operations on suspects of crimes where there was no evidence found and have had a 95% success rate in prosecution It was in July 2014 when the Supreme Court of Canada ruled unanimously that confessions arising from the Mr Big operations would be considered presumptively inadmissible on another case against Nelson Hart The Mr Big Sting in the Hart case was said to have overwhelming inducements veiled threats of violence and intimidation and considered an abuse of process by the police So now what will happen to the hundreds of other cases that have been tried by this unreliable procedure in which the Mr Big coerced confession was the only evidence used to convict the suspect This book will cover the cases that have now been brought back into court on appeals based on the Mr Big operation and will explain the outcomes
