Touring The Screen Touring The Screen:

Beyond the Screen Marta Braun, Charlie Keil, Rob King, Paul Moore, 2012-08-22 This scholarly anthology presents a new framework for understanding early cinema through its usage outside the realm of entertainment From its earliest origins until the beginning of the twentieth century cinema provided widespread access to remote parts of the globe and immediate reports on important events Reaching beyond the nickelodeon theatres cinema became part of numerous institutions from churches and schools to department stores and charitable organizations Then in 1915 the Supreme Court declared moviemaking a business pure and simple entrenching the film industry's role as a producer of harmless entertainment In Beyond the Screen contributors shed light on how pre 1915 cinema defined itself through institutional interconnections and publics interested in science education religious uplift labor organizing and more Cosmos Screen Perry

Kelly, 2013-05-01 Cosmos is a flower Cosmos Screen is a patch of cosmos flowers observed at the age of five iconic pleasant first memories for the author It is from this screen that he relates the story of his life It is also the screen beyond which he relates something of his ancestry The story follows the author from that cosmos screen in rural southern Alabama in 1930 through the Great Depression of the thirties World War II his college years then through his professional development as an artist educator and describes his travels to forty six countries Throughout all of this the author threads stories of his secret struggles to satisfy his sexual desires while maintaining the secret of his and his older brothers homosexual life Religion racism homophobia and poverty are described as issues against which the author struggles along with the alienation that these issues develop for the author and for his brother Intriguing stories told with analytical insight Serial Killing on

Martial Culture, Silver Screen Matthew Christopher Hulbert, Matthew E. Stanley, 2020-11-04 Martial Culture Silver Screen analyzes war movies one of the most popular genres in American cinema for what they reveal about the narratives and ideologies that shape U.S. national identity Edited by Matthew Christopher Hulbert and Matthew E. Stanley this volume explores the extent to which the motion picture industry particularly Hollywood has played an outsized role in the construction and evolution of American self definition Moving chronologically eleven essays highlight cinematic versions of military and cultural conflicts spanning from the American Revolution to the War on Terror Each focuses on a selection of films about a specific war or historical period often foregrounding recent productions that remain understudied in the critical literature on cinema history and cultural memory Scrutinizing cinema through the lens of nationalism and its invention of tradition Martial Culture Silver Screen considers how movies possess the power to frame ideologies provide social coherence betray collective neuroses and fears construct narratives of victimhood or heroism forge communities of remembrance and cement tradition and convention Hollywood war films routinely present broad identifiable narratives such as that of the rugged pioneer or the good war through which filmmakers invent representations of the past establishing narratives that advance discrete social and political functions in the present As a result cinematic versions of wartime conflicts condition and reinforce popular understandings of American national character as it relates to violence individualism democracy militarism capitalism masculinity race class and empire Approaching war movies as identity forging apparatuses and tools of social power Martial Culture Silver Screen

lays bare how cinematic versions of warfare have helped define for audiences what it means to be American Atatürk on Screen Enis Dinç, 2020-04-16 Mustafa Kemal Atatürk was not widely known when he led the national resistance movement in Anatolia in 1919. However, the effort and attention that his government devoted to the creation of his public image gradually turned him into a superhuman figure in the eyes of many. Film played a crucial role in the creation and dissemination of this image and helped Atatürk to advance his project of building a new imagined community of the Turkish nation. But despite the impact of film and film making on the political and cultural life of Early Republican Turkey, there is almost no research that has analysed this footage. Atatürk on Screen uncovers various film archives to reveal the significant albeit paradoxical role of film during this period. Enis Dinç shows that while film making was crucial for the creation of Atatürk's public image and the presentation of Turkey's new modern image to the world, it also posed risks as it could be re-used, re-edited and re-framed for the purposes of counter-propaganda. The main analysis in the book is of the film footage itself, including rare contemporary cinematic sources which have never received comprehensive analysis before. The book also makes use of other primary sources such as letters, memoirs, newspapers, reports, newsletters and production files, providing readers with a multi-layered account of the period.

From Steam to Screen Rebecca Harrison, 2018-03-22 In late nineteenth and early twentieth century Britain, there was widespread fascination with the technological transformations wrought by modernity. Films, newspapers and literature told astonishing stories about technology, such as locomotives breaking speed records and moving images seemingly springing into life onscreen. And whether in films about train travel or in newspaper articles about movie theatres, stories about the convergence of the railway and cinema were especially prominent. Together, the two technologies radically transformed how people interacted with the world around them and became crucial to how British media reflected the nation's modernity and changing role within the empire. Rebecca Harrison draws on archival sources and an extensive corpus of films to trace the intertwined histories of the train and the screen for the first time. In doing so, she presents a new and illuminating material and cultural history of the period and demonstrates the myriad ways railways and cinema coalesced to transform the population's everyday life. With examples taken from more than 240 newsreels and 40 feature length films, From Steam to Screen is essential reading for students and researchers working on film studies and British history at the turn of the century and beyond.

Screen Schooled Joe Clement, Matt Miles, 2017-10-01 Over the past decade, educational instruction has become increasingly digitized as districts rush to dole out laptops and iPads to every student. Yet the most important question, "Is this what is best for students?" is glossed over. Veteran teachers Joe Clement and Matt Miles have seen firsthand how damaging technology overuse and misuse has been to our kids. On a mission to educate and empower parents, they show how screen saturation at home and school has created a wide range of cognitive and social deficits in our young people. They lift the veil on what's really going on in schools: teachers who are often powerless to curb cell phone distractions, zoned-out kids who act helpless and are unfocused, unprepared and unsocial, administrators who are influenced by questionable science sponsored by corporate technology purveyors They provide action steps parents can take to demand change and make a compelling case for simpler smarter more effective forms of teaching and learning Field and Laboratory Tests to Develop the Design of a Fish Screen Structure Delta-Mendota Canal Headworks, Central Valley Project, California Dale M.
