What is Translation?

Douglas Robinson, 1997 An investigation into the state of translation studies which looks ahead at the direction in which the author sees the field moving Included are reviews of the work of translation theorists A volume in a series which aims to present a broad spectrum of thinking on translation

The Translator- Centered Multidisciplinary Construction

Lin Zhu, 2012 This book embraces the epistemological and methodological issues of theoretical construction in the field of Translation Studies from a historical and global perspective The theoretical stances are explained in detail through a systemic inquiry into the constructive aspects of theoretical innovation of the American translation theorist Douglas Robinson In order to renew and promote theoretical thinking in the field of Translation Studies this book aims to reflect on existing theoretical problems in translation trace the translation theorist s innovative and constructive ways of thinking about translation theory and explore productive philosophical and theoretical resources of translation studies This book will not only be helpful to a further and full understanding of Robinson s thoughts on translation but also offers a rethinking of how to advance Translation Studies epistemologically and methodologically

At Translation's Edge Nataša Durovicova, Patrice Petro, Lorena Terando, 2019-06-14 Since the 1970s the field of Translation Studies has entered into dialogue with an array of other disciplines sustaining a close but contentious relationship with literary translation At Translation s Edge expands this interdisciplinary dialogue by taking up questions of translation across sub fields and within disciplines including film and media studies comparative literature history and education among others For the contributors to this volume translation is understood in its most expansive transdisciplinary sense translation as exchange migration and mobility including cross cultural communication and media circulation Whether exploring the Universal Declaration of Human Rights or silent film intertitles this volume brings together the work of scholars aiming to address the edges of Translation Studies while engaging with major and minor languages colonial and post colonial studies feminism and disability studies and theories of globalization and empire experienced translators will find pragmatic techniques for dealing with problems of literary translation whatever the original language. Certain challenges and certain themes recur in translation whatever the language pair. This guide proposes to help the translator navigate through them.

Literary Translation Clifford E. Landers, 2001-01-01 In this book both beginning and

Teaching Translation LAWRENCE VENUTI, 2016-08-05 Over the past half century translation studies has emerged decisively as an academic field around the world and in recent years the number of academic institutions offering instruction in translation has risen along with an increased demand for translators, interpreters and translator trainers. Teaching Translation is the most comprehensive and theoretically informed overview of current translation teaching. Contributions from leading figures in translation studies are preceded by a substantial introduction by Lawrence Venuti in which he presents a view of translation as the ultimate humanistic task: an interpretive act that varies the form, meaning and effect of the source text. 26 incisive chapters are divided into four parts covering certificate and degree programs, teaching translation practices, studying translation theory, history and practice, surveys of translation pedagogies and key textbooks. The chapters describe long standing programs and courses in the US, Canada, the UK and Spain and each one presents an exemplary model for teaching that can be replicated or adapted in other institutions. Each contributor responds to fundamental questions at the core of any translation course: for example, how is translation defined? What qualifies students for admission to the course? What impact does the institutional site have upon the course or pedagogy? Teaching Translation will be relevant for all those working and teaching in the areas of translation and translation studies. Additional resources for Translation and Interpreting Studies are available on the Routledge Translation Studies Portal.

Translation Review, 1998

Toward a Translation Criticism Antoine Berman, 2009 Fran oise Massardier Kenney's translation of Antoine Berman's Toward a Translation Criticism makes available for the first time in the English speaking world one of the twentieth century's foundational texts in translation studies. Berman's book, published posthumously in France, develops an original concept of criticism of translation and a methodology to anchor the practice of this criticism. He demonstrates how the work of translation is a critical process as well as a creative one. Moving away from nonsystematic evaluative approaches that focus on the shortcomings of translations or the normative approaches that study the cultural and literary systems into which the translations are inserted, Berman applies the notion of ethics he developed in his earlier works, calling for a translation that is nonethnocentric and stipulating that the creativity required by translation be focused on the re-creation of the original in the other language without being over-determined by the personal poetics of the writer-translator. Berman achieves a rare combination of hermeneutic and stylistic analysis of commentary on the original and analysis of its translations, giving the reader access both to the language of the original, to the way in which poetry and thought are deployed, and to the actual work of translation. Toward a Translation Criticism is divided into two separate but interlinked parts, each focused on one element of the ethics of translation: theory, reflection and practice experience. In the first part Berman presents what he calls a general productive criticism, while in the second part he applies the general theoretical principles of this criticism to the analysis of the translations of John Donne's work into French and Spanish. The translation of Berman's text is accompanied by an introduction placing Berman's thought in its intellectual context and by supplementary notes that complete the bibliographic material presented in the French language version. This study is essential reading for translation studies scholars, readers interested in the creative literary process in the nature of literary criticism and in the philosophy of language. It will also be of interest to John Donne specialists. Labors of Translation, 1750-1850 Charles Clair Wharram, 2005

Literature in Translation Carol Maier, Françoise Massardier-Kenney, 2010

In the last several decades literary works from around the world have made their way onto the reading lists of American university and college courses in an increasingly wide variety of disciplines. This is a cause for rejoicing. Through works in translation students in our mostly monolingual society are at last becoming acquainted with the multilingual and multicultural world in which they will live and work. Many instructors have expanded their reach to teach texts that originate from across the globe. Unfortunately literature in English translation is frequently taught as if it had been written in English and students are not made familiar with the cultural, linguistic and literary context in which that literature was produced. As a result they submit what they read to their own cultural expectations; they do not read in translation and do not reap the benefits of intercultural communication. Here a true challenge arises for an instructor. Books in translation seldom contain introductory information about the mediation that translation implies or the stakes involved in the transfer of cultural information. Instructors are often left to find their own material about the author or the culture of the source text. Lacking the appropriate pedagogical tools they struggle to provide information about either the original work or about translation itself and they might feel uneasy about teaching material for which they lack adequate preparation. Consequently they restrict themselves to well known works in translation or works from other countries originally written in English. Literature in Translation: Teaching Issues and Reading Practices squarely addresses this pedagogical lack. The book's sixteen essays provide for instructors a context in which to teach works from a variety of languages and cultures in ways that highlight the effects of linguistic and cultural transfers.

Translating Slavery: Ourika and its progeny Doris Y. Kadish, Françoise Massardier-Kenney, 2009

This is a new revised and expanded edition of a translation studies classic. Translating Slavery explores the complex interrelationships that exist between translation, gender and race by focusing on antislavery writing by or about French women in the French revolutionary period. Now in a two volume collection Translating Slavery closely examines what happens when translators translate and when writers treat issues of gender and race. The volumes explore the theoretical, linguistic and literary complexities involved when white writers, especially women, took up their pens to denounce the injustices to which blacks were subjected under slavery. Volume 1: Gender and Race in French

Abolitionist Writing 1780 1830 highlights key issues in the theory and practice of translation by providing essays on the factors involved in translating gender and race as well as works in translation A section on abolitionist narrative poetry and theater has been added with a number of new translations excerpts and essays in addition to an interview with the new member of the translating team Norman R Shapiro Volume 2 Ourika and Its Progeny will contain the original translation and analyses of Claire de Duras Ourika by Massardier Kenney and Salardenne and new essays and translations French Forum ,1999 The Translator ,2000 Contemporary German Prose in Britain and France (1980-1999) Wiebke Sievers,2007 This case study of the translation of contemporary German literature in Britain and France seeks to address the philosophical and anthropological problem of otherness and to discover its significance for translation theory This work should appeal to scholars interested in German British and French literature translation theory philosophy and sociology central component of the translation process Moreover via disciplines such as philosophy and anthropology otherness in the last two decades has entered Western theories and studies of translation and become an important analytical and normative category in the field of translation studies Nevertheless there is an apparent lack of research considering the concept itself as well as its history and current use in the field and its relevance for the practice of translation the translation theories currently known as foreignizing and shows that some of these draw on the same nationalist agenda that they try to transcend Moreover the ensuing case study proves that current translation practice is still governed by a nationalist assurance of linguistic and cultural differences This book therefore concludes by calling for a change of perspective in the theoretical and practical approaches to translation Translation should no longer be regarded as a means of delimiting our selves from a national other but as a way to uncover the otherness underlying these alleged selves Target ,1997 Babel ,1997
