Wild Therapy Undomesticating Inner And Outer Worlds:

Wild Therapy Nick Totton, 2011 Therapy is by nature wild but a lot of it at the moment is rather tame This book tries to help shift the balance back towards wildness by showing how therapy can connect with ecological thinking seeing each species each being each person inherently and profoundly linked to each other Hence we develop a sense of the endless complexity of existence and realise that wildness a state where things are allowed to happen of their own accord is far more deeply complex than domesticated civilisation just as a jungle or even a piece of wasteland is more complex than a garden Psychotherapy has often opposed the cultural message Be in control of yourself and your environment it has tried to help people tolerate the anxiety of not being in control of our feelings our thoughts our body our future But the struggle over control has now reached inside the field of therapy itself the push for management measurement and regulation is getting stronger On a larger scale it seems that our efforts to control the world are well on the way to wrecking it through environmental collapse the more we try to control things the further out of balance we push them Wild Therapy offers a context for all this in the Neolithic bargain whereby humans exchanged freedom and wildness for domestication and safety Connecting the attitudes of forager cultures with contemporary Western understandings of consciousness it delineates a mode of being present in all cultures Wild Mind and explores how this can be supported through a wild therapy bringing together a wide range of already existing ideas and practices It suggests that wild therapy has a role to play in the work of creating a new culture which can live well on the earth without damaging ourselves and other beings The SAGE Jung's Shadow Concept Christopher Perry, Rupert Tower, 2023-05-05. This insightful volume is designed as a series of invitations towards living attentiveness examining how we all make the other through projection blaming and shaming the other outside ourselves our enemy with whom we prefer not to dialogue. All of us are faced daily with individual and collective manifestations of the Shadow all that we fear despise and makes us feel ashamed. Carl Jung's concept of the Shadow emerging as it did from his personal confrontation with the realms of his unconscious self is one of the most important contributions he made to the understanding of humanity and to depth psychology that realm where the focus is on unconscious processes. The contributors to this book reframe his concept in the context of contemporary Jungian thinking exploring how the Shadow develops in an individual's infancy and adolescence and its culmination where collective manifestations of the Shadow are addressed. The book offers a voyage through a series of fundamental Shadow concepts and themes including couples relationships disease organizations Evil fundamentalism ecology and boundary violation before ending with a chapter designed to help us integrate the Shadow and hold contra positions with patience and a tilt towards mutual understanding rather than being locked in polarities. This fascinating new book will be of considerable interest to the general public Jungian analysts trainees scholars and therapists both in training and practice with an interest in the inner world.

Psychotherapist at the University of Liverpool and a freelance writer, trainer and supervisor. He is former Editor of the Counselling and Psychotherapy Research Journal. Resource Focused Counselling and Psychotherapy Michael Wilson, 2017-02-24. Therapists sometimes ask: What supports you in life? What gets you through difficult times? Our journey in life relies on a range of resources to equip and fulfil us. Knowing about these resources, however, is not enough for lasting benefits; they must be bodily felt experiences. The aim of this book is to illustrate the holistic purpose of therapy: to resource integration of the client. It draws upon extensive material to affirm that the practice of contemporary therapy benefits from insights gained from evolving neuroscience. Particular emphasis is put on the benefits of drawing on the dimensions of experience to strengthen ego processes like self-awareness and self-regulation and engage with the depths of being, including soul. Resource Focused Counselling and Psychotherapy provides professionals with a comprehensive and integrative model of resource-focused therapy, drawing upon clinical examples and the current range of research and theory surrounding this emerging approach. Additionally, the book contains a range of self-resourcing exercises and practices for each part of the integrative model, enabling individuals to develop self-resources for greater resilience and well-being in their own lives. This book is an important read for psychotherapists, psychologists and counsellors, including those working with trauma. It also provides valuable insights for modalities practising from a psycho-spiritual perspective, including Jungian and transpersonal psychotherapists.

Psychoanalysis and Ecology at the Edge of Chaos Joseph Dodds, 2012-03-12. This book argues that psychoanalysis has a unique role to play in the climate change debate through its placing emphasis on the unconscious dimensions of our mental and social lives. Exploring contributions from Freudian, Kleinian, Object Relations, Self Psychology, Jungian and Lacanian traditions, the book discusses how psychoanalysis can help to unmask the anxieties, deficits, conflicts, phantasies and defences crucial in understanding the human dimension of the ecological crisis. Yet, despite being essential to studying environmentalism and its discontents, psychoanalysis still remains largely a psychology without ecology. The philosophy of Deleuze and Guattari, combined with new developments in the sciences of complexity, help us to build upon the best of these perspectives, providing a framework able to integrate Guattari's three ecologies of mind, nature and society. This book thus constitutes a timely attempt to contribute towards a critical dialogue between psychoanalysis and ecology. Further topics of discussion include ecopsychology and the greening of psychotherapy, our ambivalent relationship to nature and the non-human complexity theory in psychoanalysis and ecology, defence mechanisms against eco-anxiety and eco-grief, Deleuze, Guattari and the three ecologies becoming animal in horror and eco-apocalypse in science fiction films, nonlinear ecopsychanalysis. In our era of anxiety, denial, paranoia, apathy, guilt, hope and despair in the face of climate change, this book offers a fresh and insightful psychoanalytic perspective on the ecological crisis. As such, this book will be of great interest to all those in the fields of psychoanalysis, psychology, philosophy and ecology, as well as all who are concerned with the global environmental challenges affecting our planet's future.
