

Zetor 3045

OPERATOR'S MANUAL

APPLICATION OF FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE TRACTOR

The tractor Zetor 3045 is a modification of the basic type of wheel tractor Zetor 3045, based on the plan and front axle with suspension, the tractor Zetor 3045 are provided with four-wheel drive. The four wheels are mounted and have a similar diameter from the rear ones.

The tractor Zetor 3045 has been designed especially for service in heavy soils with decreased productivity and with a great coefficient of adhesion and for operation on maximum slope of 18°.

Tractor suit especially for agricultural works in hills, forest, marshy and sandy regions in such difficult conditions, as the tractor Zetor 3045 can operate on the bank as the standard Zetor 3045 except following operations and such ones which are harmful for its maximum stress by load P.T. 15, 20, 25 and 30. The tractor Zetor 3045 is not provided with it. This tractor can be used for all kinds of operations — for work with the tractor for harrowing and sowing and for transport to and from the agricultural operations — to take tractor to forest or field.

CONTROL OF FRONT WHEEL DRIVE

The four-wheel drive is controlled from the steering and by means of a front flip, 170° mounted in the left-hand side of the gearbox. By moving the lever forward, the four-wheel drive is engaged. In a normal driving it is disengaged.

The four-wheel drive can be used only in conditions of the road speed gear. The right-hand side shifting lever in the gearbox must be in the neutral position — Fig. 15. If selected gear gears are engaged the front wheel drive has to be disengaged. Shifting to all four-wheel drive can be carried out manually when the tractor stops.

In a constant use of road speed it is not necessary to disengage the four-wheel drive before in the case of the tractor drive on road directly in a heavy terrain.

At the slow road only with different load the drive is checked on both front wheels by means of the differential and one half axle for the differential is not provided with a lock.

When the tractor load increases in such a way that the rear wheels begin to slip, the four-wheel drive has to be engaged too.

If the tractor Zetor 3045 with the all-terrain it is advised it is possible to control the increased traction force for heavier work, for it having a good use is made of the front axle slugs. If it is not possible to disengage the four-wheel drive the control lever of four-wheel drive cannot be shifted forward in the right-hand shifting lever on the gearbox when control lever is engaged in the neutral position. Sometimes one lever should be moved up and, in this case it is recommended of the rear speed lever to push right.
