Architecture and Fire Stamatis Zografos, 2019-06-12 Architecture and Fire develops a conceptual reassessment of architectural conservation through the study of the intimate relationship between architecture and fire Stamatis Zografos expands on the general agreement among many theorists that the primitive hut was erected around fire locating fire as the first memory of architecture at the very beginning of architectural evolution Following the introduction Zografos analyses the archive and the renewed interest in the study of archives through the psychoanalysis of Jacques Derrida He moves on to explore the ambivalent nature of fire employing the conflicting philosophies of Gaston Bachelard and Henri Bergson to do so before discussing architectural conservation and the relationship between listed buildings the function of archives and the preservation of memories from the past The following chapter investigates how architecture evolves by absorbing and accommodating fire while the penultimate chapter examines the critical moment of architectural evolution the destruction of buildings by fire with a focus on the tragic disaster at London s Grenfell Tower in 2017 Zografos concludes with thoughts on Freud s drive theory He argues the practice of architectural conservation is an expression of the life drive and a simultaneous repression of the death drive which suggests controlled destruction should be an integral part of the conservation agenda Architecture and Fire is founded in new interdisciplinary research navigating across the boundaries of architecture conservation archival theory classical mythology evolutionary theory thermodynamics philosophy and psychoanalysis It will be of interest to readers working in and around these disciplines

The Conservation Movement: A History of Architectural Preservation Miles Glendinning, 2013-01-17 Winner of the 2016 Antoinette Forrester Downing Award presented by the Society of Architectural Historians In many cities across the world particularly in Europe old buildings form a prominent part of the built environment and we often take it for granted that their contribution is intrinsically positive How has that widely shared belief come about and is its continued general acceptance inevitable Certainly ancient structures have long been treated with care and reverence in many societies including classical Rome and Greece But only in modern Europe and America in the last two centuries has this care been elaborated and energised into a forceful dynamic ideology a Conservation Movement infused with a sense of historical destiny and loss that paradoxically shared many of the characteristics of Enlightenment modernity The close inter relationship between conservation and modern civilisation was most dramatically heightened in periods of war or social upheaval beginning with the French Revolution and rising to a tragic climax in the 20th century age of totalitarian extremism more recently the troubled relationship of heritage and global commercialism has become dominant Miles Glendinning's new book authoritatively presents for the first time the entire history of this architectural Conservation Movement and traces its dramatic fluctuations in ideas and popularity ending by questioning whether its recent international ascendancy can last indefinitely

The Imperial Politics of Architectural Conservation Reyhan Sabri, 2019-07-15 This book documents the changing role of the Islamic Waqf institution in Cyprus and the conservation of Waqf heritage buildings of Ottoman and Western origins Previously ignored archives of documents detailing the conservation of Waqf buildings during Ottoman and British rule allow a fine grained analysis of the colonial introduction of Western approaches to heritage conservation Colonial rule saw major legislative and administrative changes to the originally autonomous Ottoman Waqf institution which had already been subject to reforms under the Ottoman regime Under British rule Western heritage concepts and modern architectural conservation discourses became the core conservation principles in Cyprus Earlier centralisation attempts during the Ottoman Tanzimat 1831 1876 and the procedural technical and political reconfigurations during the British colonial era in Cyprus 1878 1960 were key factors of the transformation of the Waqf's traditional building upkeep system These imperial interventions their orientalist mindset and the rise of nationalism finally led to the erosion of Waqf in Cyprus as a non Western and sustainable form of building conservation This study reveals how the Western approach the forms of expertise it privileges and pragmatic diversions from this practice for political purposes were useful in neutralizing the legitimacy of local practices except in cases where opportunistic recognition of their utility played a role in inter communal colonial nationalist and inter imperial politics
