Wastewater Reuse For Golf Course Irrigation:

Wastewater Reuse for Golf Course Irrigation Michael P. Kenna, 1994-02-03 Wastewater Reuse for Golf Course Irrigation authored by leading researchers and practitioners covers a wide range of technical and regulatory aspects of how and why to irrigate golf courses with reused wastewater Water quality water conservation regulations water rights water delivery design of systems monitoring concerns retrofitting a course for recycled water and successful case studies are just some of the important topics covered in this informative valuable book California Arizona and Florida are a few of the states that have laws mandating the uses of reused wastewater This book will help golf course superintendents irrigation consultants architects and builders understand how it affects their job and what to do about it Using Reclaimed Water for Golf Course Irrigation to Improve Water Resource Management in the Lower Arkansas River Basin Kara M. McCluskey, 2015 With an increasing population municipalities in the United States are struggling to secure safe reliable water sources for future water demands Alternative water sources are being considered to improve the overall water management picture Wastewater reuse reusing wastewater effluent for beneficial purposes is an alternative water source that is gaining popularity in the United States In this study a theoretical framework was developed to enable a region to quickly assess the feasibility of reusing wastewater for irrigation needs Three criteria were established for the framework they are regulations and guidelines for reuse adequate flow ratio and cost benefit analysis As a region moves through the framework and criteria a list of feasible wastewater facilities and end users are established A model was developed for the cost benefit analysis based on regional input As regulatory frameworks and economic factors evolve over time the model can be updated to assess how these changes will affect water reuse in a region The model will provide a useful tool for a region to integrate wastewater reuse into the water resource management process The Lower Arkansas River Basin LARK was highlighted by the Kansas Water Office as a region that should investigate the role of reuse in water conservation Results from this report indicate 963 million gallons per year MG yr of wastewater effluent could feasibly be used to irrigate 9 hole and 18 hole golf courses in the region The results determined that any 18 hole golf course within a 15 9 mile radius of a wastewater treatment facility in the LARK could payback the capital costs for wastewater reuse within 10 years This information is a useful tool for the region to start the discussion for implementing wastewater reuse in the region The results from this report indicate wastewater reuse for golf course irrigation is economically feasible in the LARK Establishing a safe reliable water source for the future is paramount to the future of Kansas Future research is needed to determine how the wastewater diversion affects the environmental balance of the permitted discharge location Handbook of Turfgrass Management and Physiology Mohammad Pessarakli, 2007-10-09 A multibillion dollar industry that has tripled in the last ten years turfgrass management plays an important role in landscaping golf courses and other sports surfaces Proper management and cultural practices are crucial for the performance of these versatile grasses creating a demand among scientists researchers and industry professionals Turf Managers' Handbook for Golf Course Construction, Renovation, and Grow-In Charles B. White, 2000-01-15 For the first time a book finally combines field experience with the fundamentals of turf science to help you understand the concepts involved in proper grown in management and to troubleshoot problems on site throughout the management process A major goal of this unique handbook is to outline and detail the numerous quality control issues that face golf course superintendents and managers to serve as a guideline for the multitude of questions that need to be addressed before during and after construction It stresses the magnitude and importance of finish construction and grow in as it relates to turf maintenance turf performance and the playability of the course from its opening into the future A great resource to help educate owners and developers about the details of the grow in sequence and its budgetary requirements
