Water Policy and Governance in South Asia M. Anwar Hossen,2017-03-16 Dr Hossen carried out an exceptional program of research in Bangladesh which focused on water governance in relation to human rights international water law and environmental sustainability His major argument is that eco agricultural system encounters major disruptions due to a number of factors including regional hydropolitics and neoliberal and highly centralized approaches to water resource management that follow the principles of ecocracy In this context Dr Hossen explores three major questions i How can local ecological knowledge be incorporated into national water policy ii What strategies and reforms are required at the international watershed governance level and iii How can human rights principles including the principle of water as a human right be used to formulate more effective water policy and governance principles To answer these questions Dr

Hossen explores the effects of regional hydropolitics on water management focusing on three large engineering projects the Farakka Barrage built by India on the Ganges River and the Ganges Kobodak GK and Gorai River Restoration GRR Projects in Bangladesh This analysis is based on his research into local knowledge and farming practices during a year of fieldwork in 2011 12 focus group discussions in depth case studies and social survey methods In addition to this primary data he looks at extensive secondary documents from the government of Bangladesh pertaining to water management agricultural modernization and institutional structures The arguments herein are applicable particularly to the Ganges Brahmaputra Basin countries in South Asia but also to the river basins of other parts of the world Water and Society Terje Tvedt, 2015-12-22 Despite the central importance that water has held for civilizations both ancient and modern its social significance has made surprisingly little impact on our contemporary understanding of human history and development Dominant interpretations of the relationship between society and nature have remained water blind In Water and Society historian and leading water expert Terje Tvedt argues for a change that acknowledges the significant role played by water in societal development Reflecting his expertise as a geographer historian and a political scientist and drawing on his wide experience of water issues around the world Terje Tvedt's Water and Society provides a long overdue reappraisal of the relationship between water and society one that gives water its rightful place as central to any true understanding of human history and development Proceedings of the 7th International Symposium on Water Resource and Environmental Management Haoqing Xu, 2026-07-16 This book features select peer reviewed proceedings from 7th International Symposium on Water Resource and Environmental Management WREM2024 It comprises articles written by researchers practitioners policymakers and entrepreneurs that examine recent advancements in water resource and environmental management The book covers a range of topics including the ecosystem services and the water energy nexus and water and environment protection It provides readers with comprehensive information on the principles of sustainable water resources management as well as recent advances directions for future research and policy development for sustainable water resources management UNU Publications United Nations University, 2005 International Bibliography of Political Science British Library of Political and Economic Science, 2003-10-23 IBSS is the essential tool for librarians university departments research institutions and any public or private institution whose work requires access to up to date and comprehensive knowledge of the social sciences Rethinking Water Management Caroline Figueres, Johan Rockstrom, Cecilia Tortajada, 2012-05-23 If water resources are to be distributed efficiently equitably and cost effectively in this rapidly changing world then it is clear that current water management practices are no longer feasible Innovative approaches are required to meet the increasing water demands of a growing world population and economy and the needs of the ecosystems supporting them New approaches have to be employed at global national and local levels In Rethinking Water Management a new generation of water experts from around the world examine the critical challenges confronting the water profession including rainwater and groundwater management recycling and reuse water rights transboundary access to water and financing of water They offer important new perspectives on the use management and conservation of fresh water in terms of both quantity and quality for the domestic agricultural and industrial sectors and show how a new set of paradigms can be applied to successfully manage water for the future Caroline Figueres is Head of the Urban Infrastructure Department at UNESCO IHE Water Education Institute in The Netherlands Cecilia Tortajada is Vice President of the Third World Centre for Water Management in Mexico and Vice President elect of the International Water Resources Association Johan Rockström is Water Resources Expert at UNESCO IHE

Transferable Groundwater Rights Andreas N. Charalambous, 2013-10-28 The principle of transferable groundwater rights is that by making water rights capable of being traded in the market water resources can be used more sustainably and efficiently Groundwater would achieve its economic value by switching from the high volume low value irrigation which is prevalent with many farmers particularly in South Asia to low volume high value urban supply or the growing of intensive horticultural or cash crops This book discusses transferable groundwater rights in their broader context It starts with a detailed description of the physical aspects of groundwater which non technical readers should find useful followed by a discussion of legal and economic aspects Water transfers and the international experiences in transferable groundwater rights are dealt with in detail in two subsequent chapters A model is presented to guide those involved in water resources management and planning in their decision process to introduce transferable groundwater rights and water rights trading The author concludes that transferable groundwater rights potentially offer a better alternative to land based water rights systems However he casts serious doubt on whether groundwater rights trading on its own can achieve water resources sustainability environmental protection and social equity Government intervention seems to be almost always needed to assist the water rights market and take responsibility for any of its adverse consequences
