Preparations for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Committee of Public Accounts, 2010 The Olympic Delivery Authority continues to make good progress with its delivery programme and the main construction projects are on track to be completed in time for testing in early 2011 The Department has committed to delivering the Games within the 9 325 million budget set in March 2007 Most of the budget is for the Olympic Delivery Authority which has done well to control its costs and find savings across its programme enabling it to absorb additional costs for the Olympic Village and Media Centre projects. These two projects are now being publicly funded contrary to original plans. While 1 270 million of the original 2 747 million contingency within the Olympic budget now remains and is available to the Olympic Delivery Authority the majority is earmarked to meet known risks leaving only 194 million headroom. It may be that not all of the known risks will materialise but new cost pressures continue to emerge. Staying within the budget also depends on receiving some 600 million receipts from the Olympic Village development. There is the risk of a deficit in the London Organising Committee LOCOG and there is no contingency fund in its budget. Some 400 million of the income LOCOG still needs is to come from the sale of tickets. It is still not clear what will happen to major assets including the Stadium and Media Centre after the Games and the consequent timing and value of any reimbursements to funders including the National Lottery.
