Chinese Ground Forces 1937 45 is the first ready reference to the organization and armament of Chinese ground forces during the Sino Japanese War of 1937 45 The work integrates Chinese Japanese and Western sources to examine the details of the structure and weapons of the period Recent scholarship has contributed greatly to our understanding of China s role in the war but this is the first book to deal with the bottom level underpinnings of this massive army crucial to an understanding of its tactical and operational utility An introductory chapter discusses the military operations in China often given short shrift in World War II histories The work then traces the evolution of the national army s organizational structure from the end of the Northern Expedition to the conclusion of World War II Included are tables of organization and strength reports for the wartime period The armament section illustrates and details not only the characteristics of the many and varied weapons used in China many seen nowhere else but also their acquisition and such local production as was undertaken This is complemented by a chapter on the arsenals and their evolution and production programs The Chinese army was one of the largest of the war and it and Japan s fought longer than any other It faced unique challenges including fragmented loyalties huge expanses of territory poor logistics networks inadequate arms supplies and often incompetence and corruption Nevertheless they fought bravely in major battles through 1941 and were able to counterpunch effectively in important regions through the rest of the war Aimed at both military historians and wargamers this work fills an important gap in our understanding of this the most under appreciated army of the war Aircooled VW Engine Interchange Manual : The User's Guide to Original and Aftermarket Parts... Keith Seume,1996 Find out which parts will fit your engine and what theyll do for it with this valuable guide to all engine ignition and carburetion parts for your classic VW engine Tuning recommendations on equipping engines for economy performance mild performance increases fast road or full race performance Includes stock part interchange specs and parts numbers and describes the wide range of aftermarket parts available ABC-Clio Online User Manual Jessica S. Pingel, 2022-08-04 Metal screens are commonly used as components for fluid handling in spacecraft and rocket tank designs. In most cases, the screens perform a passive separation of the propellant phases. The separation of the liquid from the gaseous propellant phase is a special challenge. Liquid gas phase separation means that the gaseous phase is allowed to enter a phase separation device while the liquid phase is blocked. The technical application of this process is the depressurization in a propellant tank. A certain amount of the gaseous propellant phase is vented from the tank through the gas port. The liquid propellant phase remains in the tank in order to be stored for the engine. However, if the tank causes a liquid movement during the depressurization, a part of the liquid can potentially enter the gas port. In order to prevent the unwanted liquid outflow, a separation of the liquid from the gas is necessary. This is possible with the aid of a double screen element and has already been performed for storable liquids in Earth's gravity and microgravity as well as for cryogenic liquids in Earth's gravity. At the current state of the art, the separation of the liquid from the gaseous phase of the cryogenic propellant hydrogen using a double screen element has not been performed in microgravity. However, with regard to a possible application, it is mandatory to investigate the function of the double screen element for the real propellant under relevant environmental conditions. In this work, a cryogenic test facility has been developed and operated successfully under Earth's gravity and microgravity conditions using the drop tower at the University of Bremen. Hereby, the original cryogenic propellant phases liquid and gaseous hydrogen have been used. The experiments show the appearance of the physical processes which are related to the retention capability of a double screen element against liquid hydrogen. Furthermore, these physical processes can obviously be influenced by an unknown boundary condition at the screens, the screen saturation. This unknown boundary condition in turn can obviously be influenced by a certain stimulus which causes a special fluid mechanical process. A simplified mathematical and two numerical models have been developed which combine the observed physical processes in the experiments. Two fitting parameters are introduced which influence the flow through screen pressure loss of the liquid and the gaseous hydrogen phase. After the fitting to experimental data, the two fitting parameters have been interpreted with respect to a possible screen saturation. The results lead to a prediction of the unknown boundary condition and indicate that a partial saturation of the screens with liquid could be present in each considered experiment. This can possibly lead to a major influence of the overall resistance of the double screen element against liquid hydrogen.
