Rules of Evidence as amended and effective through December 1 2013 Table of Jurisdictions That Have Adopted Some System of Uniform Rules for Regulating the Admission and Exclusion of Evidence through 2014 and Table of Contents of the Uniform Rules of Evidence with 2005 Amendments Is Bad-Faith the New Wilful Blindness? Jo Bac,2017-10-23 This books focus is on one particular corporate governance risk that arises from the similarities between traditional elements of a willful blindness cause of action and those of company directors bad faith An essential aspect of any consideration of corporate governance is the role played by the directors of companies who might have been facilitating the wrongdoing in part by remaining willfully blind while falling foul of the good faith obligation This study investigates cross application of the doctrines of good faith and willful blindness in company law in Delaware USA in comparison with company law in England UK with relation to company directors conduct Here is the argument that courts in both legal systems under a particular set of conditions and hearing cases of company directors falling foul of the good faith obligation should consider whether the willful blindness doctrine sheds light on the interpretation of company directors alleged misconduct A positive consideration of this approach could expand the courts horizons to include the most apparent individuals namely the company directors to face liability concerns for corporate disasters New Financing for Distressed Businesses in the Context of Business Restructuring Law Sanford U. Mba,2019-06-29 This book focuses on the restructuring of distressed businesses emphasizing the need for new financing during the restructuring process as well as during relaunch and examines the role of law in encouraging creditor confidence and incentivizing lending It describes two broad approaches to encouraging new finance during restructuring a prescriptive one that seeks to attract credit using expressly defined statutory incentives and a market based one that relies on the business judgment of lenders against the backdrop of transaction avoidance rules Securing new financing for a distressed business is a critical part of successful restructuring Without such financing the business may be unable to meet interim liquidity constraints or to implement its restructuring plans This book addresses related questions concerning the place of new financing as an essential component of restructuring In general terms the book explores how statutory interventions and the courts can provide support with contentious issues that arise from the provision of new financing whether through new financing agreements or through distressed debt investors who are increasingly gaining prominence as sources of new financing for distressed businesses It argues that courts play a key part in preventing or correcting the imbalances that can arise from the participation of distressed debt investors In this context it critically examines the distressed debt market in emerging markets like Nigeria and the opportunity presented by non performing loans arguing that the regulatory pattern of market entry may disincentivize distress debt investing in a market that is in dire need of financing The book offers a fresh and comparative perspective on restructuring new financing for distressed businesses by comparing various approaches primarily from the US UK and Germany and drawing lessons for frontier markets with particular reference to Nigeria It fills an important gap in international comparative scholarship and discusses
